DOUBLE SUICIDE ENDS ROMANCE OF NEWLY WEDS

Ex-Wife of Millionaire Suydam and Her Latest Husband Kill Selves.

Suydam Gave Wife Freedom, and a Month Ago She Married Young Plumber, With Whom She Eloped—Ex-Husband Summoned to View Couple.

New York, February 4.—Double suicide today ended the sensational romance of the former wife of Walter L. Suydam and Frederick Noble, the young plumber, for the love of whom Mrs. Suydam ran away from her millionaire husband and married. The bodies of Noble and his bride of a month were found in their New York apartments today. The couple had been asphyxiated by gas.

The suicide pact, the discovery of its results by Mrs. John J. White, of Washington, D. C., the mother of Mrs. Noble, and other features of the case were sensational.

Mrs. White, who has an apartment on Lexington avenue, had her daughter as a visitor last night and supposed the daughter would remain overnight. When, however, Mrs. White awoke this morning she found that her daughter had fled the house, and hurried immediately to the latter's apartment, on West Twelfth street, in her automobile. She became alarmed when there was no answer to her repeated knocks, and summoned two policemen, who forced an entrance.

COLD WAVE HITS ATLANTA SUNDAY

Thermometers Show 19 Degrees Above at Midnight.

Beginning Early in Morning, the Mercury Kept Dropping and Indications Are That January Temperature Will Be Approached.

When the weather man told inquirers on Saturday that Sunday would be a cold day, he evidently knew exactly what he was talking about. He promised a cold wave, and more than "made good."

He gave Atlantans until the afternoon to get ready for the cold. The wave decided to visit Atlanta earlier, and arrived in the morning.

The temperature kept dropping all day and the chances are that early this morning Atlanta will experience a degree of cold which will rival the record made during January, when one of the seven coldest days in the history of the Atlanta weather bureau was registered.

About 7 o'clock Sunday morning unofficial thermometers showed a temperature of about 28, with a wind blowing that made it seem to be still chillier.

At 10 o'clock at night the mercury had dropped to 22 degrees, and at 12 o'clock thermometers in the center of the city registered 19.

The lowest mark reached this winter was made during January, when 6 degrees above was indicated by the official thermometer. The lowest Atlanta has ever had was 8 degrees below, but that was many years ago.

The snow and the rain which fell on Saturday night, freezing and forming a pavement on the streets, added to the discomfort of the church goers on Sunday.

The official forecaster in Atlanta closes his office on Sunday and so no promise of today's weather could be secured there last night, but from the Washington weather office came the following prediction:

For Georgia—"Fair Monday and Tuesday, rising temperature Monday, north portion. Light northwest winds becoming variable."

$13,000,000 Loss by Fire.

Victoria, B. C., February 4.—The great fires in Osaka, Japan, on January 16 and 17, which destroyed 5,268 buildings and made 30,000 people homeless, caused the death or injury of seventy persons and financial loss of $13,000,000, according to steamer advices received here today. The flames spread toward the Tennoji, an historical section of Osaka, abounding in Buddhist temples. The priests rang their temple bells and beat their drums to call the gods to assist. The winds veered, and the temples were spared.

MADERO TO USE METHODS OF DIAZ

To Restore Peace in Rebellion-Ridden Mexico.

Madero Has Determined to Mete Out Swift and Silent Punishment to All Rebels. Some Newspaper Writers Will Be Deported.

SEVENTH INFANTRY ORDERED TO BE READY FOR BORDER

Leavenworth, Kans., February 4. Colonel Daniel Cornman, acting commandant at the army post at Fort Leavenworth, received orders today to hold the Seventh infantry of which he is in command and the second squadron of the fifteenth cavalry under command of Wm. T. Littebrandt, ready to go at a moment's notice to the Mexican border.

Mexico City, February 4.—Without blare of trumpet and without official proclamation the federal government proposes to employ the drastic methods of Diaz in restoring peace. Immediate application of this new policy will be the nation's only apprisal of it. This is the substance of a statement by a cabinet minister today.

Swift punishment is to be the portion of all agitators who can be reached, whether of gun or pencil. A few newspaper writers wil be deported it is said under that provision of the constitution which provides for the expulsion of undesirables. Public parades and street orators are to be prohibited in cases where the purpose is in any manner connected with political affairs.

This proscription is in accordance with the government's diagnosis of the revolutionary disease which has broken out in so many parts of the country.

Official figures place the losses in death, both north and south since January 26, as follows: Federals, 34; rebels, from 222 to 272, and non-combatants, 10.

Unofficial reports apparently well founded, add to these figures 15 federal dead and 45 rebel dead.

The Number of Rebels.

Just how many men now are in arms against the central government is probably known by no one, certainly not by the president and his cabinet. It is known that there is one rebellion, that of Emiliano Zapata, covering all of the state of Morelos and portions of the states of Hidalgo,

PLANNING TO STOP PENSION GRABBERS

Senator Hoke Smith and Senator Bryan Line Up for the Fight.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, D. C., February 4.—(Special.)—Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and Senator Bryan, of Florida, are collaborating on a plan to defeat the pension grabbers. The former is disposed to block the special pension bills which are making new drains of millions of dollars on the treasury annually.

Recently when the omnibus claims bill containing about 500 special pensions came up in the senate, Mr. Smith arose and asked that it go over until he could have an opportunity to look into it. Surprise and consternation showed on the faces of many senators.

There were comments that every new senator got the same bug and tried to reform the pension bureau during his first term, but soon abandoned the task as a bad job. Senator Smith has made a determined start, however. As a member of President Cleveland's cabinet he supported Mr. Cleveland in his attitude in opposition to special pension legislation.

"I have received numerous letters from men who are drawing pensions and who are entitled to draw them, commending my stand in regard to special pensions," said Mr. Smith. "If I were disposed to do so I could take half a day on each one of these pension bills and have the entire record in each case spread before the senate. Since there are 500 of these cases now pending, that would not allow much time for general legislation."

Senator Bryan recently declared that bills "to correct the military record of, etc." usually meant bills "to straighten a crooked record." He wishes to have published the names of the 600,000 persons who are now on the pension rolls. He takes the position that the reform most urgently needed today is to clean out the pension office.

"The big pension bills which it now takes $162,000,000 a year to meet, and the general legislation which proposes to increase the amount $75,000,000 a year is the pension legislation which most care needs supervising," he said.

GOVERNMENT TO SELL ARSENAL AT AUGUSTA

Washington, February 4.—(Special.) Approval by the war department of the plan to sell Governor's island, New York, at a price somewhere between $100,000,000 and $500,000,000, as provided for in the bill of Representative Helm, of Kentucky, chairman of the committee on expenditures in the war department, was expressed today.

The government would also dispose of the Augusta, Ga., arsenal. A general staff officer said tonight:

"There is no reason for retaining this valuable piece of property, which occupies ten city blocks in the most fashionable part of Augusta. The property should be sold and the proceeds covered into the treasury. The same thing is true of Governor's island. For practical purposes, it would be as sensible to have a few squares on Fifth avenue as to retain this property, which is more valuable for business than other uses."

CORPSE OF NEGRO LYNCHED AT MACON CREMATED BY MOB

Riddled Body Was Taken From Undertaker's by the Mob Sunday Afternoon.

THOUSANDS WATCHED BURNING OF THE BODY

Cremation Took Place in Heart of Negro Settlement—Negro Lynched for Outrage on a White Girl—He Had Also Attempted to Assault Another White Woman.

NEGRO COMMITS SUICIDE TO ESCAPE BEING LYNCHED

Paducah, Ky., February 4.—Rather than take his chances of summary punishment at the hands of a posse of citizens, an unidentified negro surrounded tonight in a woods near Edgoten, Ky., killed himself. At 6 o'clock this evening he had shot and mortally wounded Lee Jenkins, a clerk in a country store, when Jenkins rebuked the negro for boisterous conduct. After the shooting the negro, closely pursued, attempted to get away. He had been in the neighborhood only a short while.

Macon, Ga., February 4.—(Special.) Shortly after 12 o'clock today the body of the negro, Charley Powell, who was lynched this morning for assaulting a white girl, was forcibly taken from an undertaking establishment on Mulberry street, where it had been placed on exhibition, and was carried to a field in South Macon, in the midst of a populous negro settlement and burned at the stake.

The body was placed in a delivery wagon, which was followed through the streets for over a mile by a crowd

WHO SENT BOMB TO KILL WOMAN?

The Police of New York City Unable to Answer.

Dickinson, Who Was With Miss Taylor When She Received Infernal Box, Apparently Innocent--Another Man and Woman Involved.

New York, February 4.—Definite clues to the identity of the person who sent the bomb which caused the death last night of Helen Taylor, known also as Mrs. Grace Walker, in her apartments on West 77th street, had failed to materialize tonight although a score of the city's best detectives employed all their ingenuity toward unravelling the mystery.

Charles M. Dickinson, the employee of a motor company and formerly of Portland, Oregon, who was present in the apartment when Miss Taylor opened the fatal package that contained the bomb, will be given a hearing tomorrow by Coroner Feinberg on a technical charge of homicide, but the police seem inclined to accept his statement that he knew nothing of the bomb until the explosion occurred. Dickinson's father is Thomas H. Dickinson, of Champlain, N. Y.

Seeking for a Motive.

Efforts either to establish a motive for the crime or to find the messenger who delivered the innocent looking cigarette box with its death-dealing contents thus far have proved unavailing. The police developed the fact, however, that there was another man in the apartment just previous to the explosion, a fact they learned, they say, from Miss Edna Lamarre, who occupied the apartment with the Taylor woman. Miss Lamarre admitted, according to the police, that when Dickinson arrived at the apartment she left by a rear door accompanied by the man who was not, however, seen by Dickinson.

About ten minutes later she called up Miss Taylor on the telephone, according to the police, to carry out a pre-arranged plan to induce Dickinson to leave the house on the ground that Miss Taylor's brother-in-law was coming. Dickinson and Miss Taylor had quarreled, she explained, and the latter was anxious to get him out of the house.

Miss Lamarre got no answer to her message, she said, the explosion already having occurred, she believes.

The police say they have the name of her companion but will not make it public until they have interrogated him. Just what happened during the

GREAT ICE BRIDGE AT NIAGARA THE FINEST THAT EVER FORMED AT THE FAMOUS FALLS

ICE BRIDGE AT NIAGARA FALLS

The ice bridge at Niagara falls this year was declared by old inhabitants to be the finest ever seen. The extreme cold weather that has continued for several weeks made the crystal bridge higher and broader than usual. Thousands of visitors were attracted to the place. Below the falls the river was a solid mass of ice, on which enterprising merchants erected huts, in which they dispensed cheering beverages.

ATLANTA CHURCH TRANSMITTER CONVICTS NEGRO MURDERER

By the use of the transmitter installed in the Baptist Tabernacle, one of three alleged North Carolina murderers was made to tell the story of the crime, when he thought that not a human being except themselves heard the statements that were made.

The transmitter was borrowed from the church by the Western Electric Company and sent to Gastonia, N. C., where the three negroes—Will, John and Hack Ross—were confined. It was placed in the ceiling of the cell, and so arranged on Christmas day with decorations as to allay the suspicion of the prisoners. The three negroes, believing they were alone, and that no one could hear them, talked to each other, and their conversation convinced the officers of the law that John Ross was guilty, and Will and Hack innocent.

Suggested by Detective Burns.

The ruse was suggested by Detective Burns, the noted sleuth who prosecuted the McNamaras, and carried out by Gastonia officials.

The officers of the Baptist Tabernacle consented to loan their transmitter for the purpose. This transmitter is used in connection with the Baptist Tabernacle infirmary and other institutions connected with the church.

When the transmitter had been carried from Atlanta to Gastonia and placed in the cell where the three negroes were confined, a telephone wire was hung so as to connect the trans-

MARSHAL KILLED; SLAYER WOUNDED

Sam Calhoun Fatally Shot Norris Holmes, His Assailant, Before Dying.

Vidalia, Ga., February 4.—(Special.) Sam Calhoun, marshal of Soperton, Ga., was shot through the body by Norris Holmes at 8 o'clock last night, and died at 1 o'clock this morning.

Holmes was pranking with a 22-caliber rifle, and the marshal asked him to put up the gun. Holmes then turned on him and shot him through the body. The marshal returned the fire, wounding Holmes so that he is not expected to live. Both men are of prominent families.

THREE FACTORIES BURN; LOSS OVER A MILLION

Philadelphia, February 4.—Fires early tonight destroyed three large factory buildings in the block bounded by Wood, Vine, Eighth and Franklin streets, causing a loss of more than a million dollars. The principal loser was the Hensel-Colladay company, manufacturers of millinery and dress trimmings. Both its buildings were completely destroyed with an estimated loss of $800,000, covered by insurance. The other building was occupied by R. P. Feld, manufacturer of ladies' shirtwaists, the Economical Shirt Manufacturing Company and H. Weintraub, manufacturer of men's shirts.

EX-BALL PLAYER CALLED TO KNOXVILLE CHURCH

Knoxville, Tenn., February 4.—The Fifth Presbyterian church of this city extended a call today to Rev. Robert L. Houston, of Amsterdam, Ohio. A peculiar incident in connection with the call is that Houston as a college boy played ball with the Knoxville team and later went with Macon in the South Atlantic league. The money derived from playing ball paid for his education in Maryville college and in an eastern theological seminary.

SPEER WANTS ERWIN OUSTED

Judge Urges Wickersham to Appoint Another District Attorney.

Owing to Other Specially Assigned Duties, Mr. Erwin Has Prosecuted Only One Case in Southern District in Last Ten Years.

Macon, Ga., February 4.—(Special.) Judge Emory Speer has requested and urged Attorney General Wickersham to appoint another district attorney for the United States court for the southern district of Georgia to take the place of District Attorney aMrion Erwin, who has prosecuted only one case in this district in ten years.

Judge Speer took this step with Mr. Erwin's full knowledge. Furthermore Judge Speer has recommended the following lawyers as men able to succeed Mr. Erwin: Malcolm D. Jones and Orville A. Park, of Macon; Enoch Callaway, of Augusta; Stanley S. Bennett, of Quitman; Joseph W. Bennett, of Brunswick; Samuel T. Bennett, of Albany, and Fred T. Saussy, of Savannah.

As Assistant District Attorney Alexander Akerman will soon be appointed district attorney for Georgia and assigned exclusively to the prosecution of trusts, just as Mr. Erwin has been for ten years, and is now assigned to recovering sums of money stolen from the government by Greene, Gaynor and Carter, it will be necessary for the attorney general, if he accedes to Judge Speer's urgent request, to make two appointments.

Mr. Erwin wishes to remain district attorney—he still draws that salary, in addition to $5,000 extra per year for his special work—but he admits the correctness of Judge Speer's position. All of the laywers recommended by Judge Speer are democrats.

In his letter to the attorney general, Judge Speer points out that District Attorney Erwin has only prosecuted one case in his district in a decade and that his work has fallen upon Assistant District Attorney Ackerman, who has done very well under the circumstances. It is believed here that Attorney General Wickersham will in a very short time make the appointments of both district attorney and assistant district attorney.

Miss Annie Peck Returns.

New York, February 4.—Miss Annie E. Peck, the noted mountain climber, returned to this country today from a visit of several months to South America. Last July, she made the first ascent of Mount Coropuna, accompanied only one guide and a few natives. Coropuna was supposed by some to be the highest mountain in South America, but Miss Peck says she found it short of the height of Mount Huascaran, which she conquered in 1908.

EDICT IS ISSUED FOR A REPUBLIC

The Throne of China Has Bowed to Inevitable.

Empress Dowager Charges Premier Yuan With Establishing Republic in Co-Operation With the Republicans of the South.

Pekin, February 4.—The empress dowager issued an edict this evening instructing Premier Yuan Shi Kai to establish a republic in co-operation with the southern republicans. The edict has not yet been published, and it is expected that it will be kept more or less secret so far as the public is concerned until arrangements in the south have been completed.

Yuan Shi Kai is now endeavoring to persuade the Nanking government to hand over the control of affairs to enable him to carry on the administration of the whole empire until the national convention appoints a permanent government and adopts a constitution.

It is doubted here that the republicans in Nanking will consent to this. It is believed that the only solution possible is the creation of two provisional governments and the continuance of temporary control. Yuan Shi Kai is opposed to the transfer of the capital to Nanking, but there appears to be a close understanding between the imperial premier and the republicans, who have again offered him the presidency.

The fact that the abdication of the throne has been decided upon is not known to the general public in Pekin, and the skillful manner in which the transition is being effected leaves small apprehension of disturbances.

Many of the imperial princes are leaving Pekin. Prince Kung, leader of the Mongolian anti-abdicationists, and Prince Su, of the board of dependencies, have gone to Manchuria.

General Chao Ehr Shun, viceroy of Manchuria, has espoused the republic, but Chang Chow Lin, commandant of troops, is irreconcilable.

REPUBLICANS OF THE SOUTH WANT COALITION GOVERNMENT

Nanking, February 4.—The simultaneous announcement that Yuan Shi Kai has received permission from the throne to organize a republic in the north in conjunction with the southern government, the arrival at Nanking of Wu Ting Fang, the republican minister of justice, and Tang Shao Yi, the representative of the imperial premier, and the extension of armistice for one week indicate the approaching end of the present stage of indecision and future negotiations looking to organization acceptable to both sides.

The last stage of the peace negotiations involves the question of the capital, which the republicans assert must inevitably be Nanking, as the south would never consent to Pekin. It is also declared that the republicans will not agree to an interval in which Yuan Shi Kai would have control in the north. Tney will insist upon a coalition government with Yuan Shi Kai as president. Sun Yat Sen probably as premier and Tang Shao Yi as foreign minister. The republicans point out that they are in a position to secure their demands as the Manchu government from first to last has failed to strike a blow except in self-defense.

The main question now as the revolutionary leaders view the situation is the preservation of peace and the prompt restoration of order which they say is already assured.

ICE BRIDGE GOES TAKING PERSONS TO THEIR DEATH

Great Gorge at Niagara Breaks Away and Passes Down the River.

SIGHTSEERS ON BRIDGE WERE CARRIED TO DOOM

Known That Persons Perished—One of the Victims, Eldridge Stanton, Refused to Save Himself, Preferring to Die With His Terror-Stricken Wife.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., February 4.—The great ice bridge that has checked the river channel between the cataract and the upper steel arch bridge below the falls for the last three weeks broke from its shoring just at noon today and went down the river, taking with it to their death a man and woman believed to be Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge Stanton of Toronto, Canada, and Burrell Heacook, 17 years old, Cleveland, Ohio. Four other persons were on the ice at the time but managed to get ashore in safety.

Bridge Considered Safe.

The bridge was considered perfectly safe. For weeks the great fields of ice had been coming down the river piling up against the barrier until it was from 60 to 80 feet thick and under the influence of zero weather had become firmly anchored to the shore. The jam was about 1,000 feet in length and in some places a quarter of a mile in breadth. For two weeks it had offered safe passage to the hardy and today an immense crowd of excursionists came to view the winter wonder of the river. Had the accident happened an hour later in the day hundreds would have lost their lives, for the crowd was moving into Prospect park in the elevators that run down the cliff for the purpose of venturing out upon the ice.

Elected to Die With Wife.

Somewhere deep in the great whirlpool tonight sleeps the man partially identified as Mr. Stanton, who twice put aside chances of rescue in order to remain with his terror-stricken wife, and who, in the shadow of death—just at the break in the rapids—spurned assistance for himself and attempted to bind about the woman's body a rope dangling from the lower steel arch bridge. The lad, Burrell Heacock, was cast in the same mould. Had he not turned back on the ice to give assistance to the man, he, too, might have made the shore. On the bridge at the time it tore free from the shore besides these three were Monroe Gilbert, of this city; Ignatus Roth, of Cleveland, Heacock's companion; William Hill, an old river man; William Lablond, river man, and an unidentified Italian.

Hill, nearest to the American shore, heard the grinding and crashing of the ice, and ran at top speed toward the Canadian shore, calling to the others to follow him. Lablond gave them warning that safety lay in that direction. Gilbert and the Italian followed their lead, but the others became confused. By the time they had regained their composure, the bridge was moving fast down the river.

Stopped by Lane of Water.

The man and woman started first toward the American shore, but they were stopped by a lane of open water. Back they ran again toward the Canadian side, turned about and made for the American side. When hardly more than fifty yards from the rocky shore, the woman fell on her face, utterly spent.

"I can't go on; I can't go on," she cried. "Let us die here."

And all the time the great field of ice driven onward by a southwest gale and pressed by a jam broken free from its anchorage near the base of the Horseshoe falls, went on breasting the terrible outrush of the Niagara Falls Power Company's tunnel outflow, the mightiest current in all the river, without being broken. As the woman fell the man strove to get her to her feet again and tried to drag her along the ice, calling for assistance to Roth and Heacock, who were nearest. Heacock turned back to the couple and helped support the woman. The act cost him his life.

Struggled Over Hummocks of Ice.

Roth struggled along over the hummocks of ice, getting close to the open stretch of water at the Canadian end of the jam. There were men on the shore ready to give him assistance. Lablond, Hill, William Cook and Superintendent Harry King, of the Ontario Power Company, stationed themselves at the edge of the water.

Roth was afraid to trust himself to the icy waters. Lablond jumped out to the field of ice with a rope and half carried, half dragged the boy ashore.

Word that the ice bridge had gone out flashed through the city like wildfire, and within a short time the American shore of the river was lined by thousands of people, who witnessed the tragedy being enacted in the deep ravine below them.

After getting Roth safely ashore, the men made an effort to reach the other three on the ice floe. But, at a point 600 feet below the upper steel arch bridge, the ice field broke into two great fields, one going toward the American side and anchored on a great rock near the hydraulic power house. The moving floe with the three helpless beings passed slowly down the river.

Meantime the fire headquarters truck had been called out, and a general alarm of fire on the Canadian side called out the men there. They took station with ropes along the shore, but the floe was far beyond their reach. The Niagara avenue firemen were sent to the lower steel arch bridge, and there took station with a rope. The Canadian firemen had two ropes down from the cantilever bridge, which is about 300 yards above the other structure.

The Floe Breaks in Twain.

Just above the old Maid of the Mist landing, a quarter of a mile from the whirlpool rapids, the floe on which the three were borne broke into two sections, each about 200 feet square—the man and woman on one, Heacock on the other. Heacock waved his hand to his companions in distress as his floe moved clear of the other and, caught in a current, raced down the river. The other floe then shot toward the American shore, and was caught in an eddy and whirled there for about five minutes. This was within sight of the tumbling waters that marked the beginning of the rapids—and death.

Heacock saw the ropes dangling from the bridge, and made ready to catch one. Very coolly he took off his overcoat and posed himself on the tossing floe. In his course there dangled one rope, and a second was moved toward him. He caught that held by Officer Pat Kelly, of the Ontario police force, and a company of about twenty railroad men—caught it and jumped free of the ice.

The sag of the rope at that great drop—200 feet—let him into the chilly water up to his waist. And, before he was clear of it, he was frightfully battered by three successive floes of jutting ice.

Utterly Spent, Boy Fails.

Not content with the efforts of the men above to draw him up, he tried to assist himself hand over hand. The time was 1:10 o'clock, and the hour or more the boy had been in the ice and the effect of the icy ducking had sapped his strength. He stopped trying to pull himself up and hung limp on the rope, which spun him around like a top. Kelly and his men pulled steadily. Ten feet, 20, 25, 30 feet, up he came. The great crowd on the bridges cheered—those who were not weeping. Grimly the boy hung on, trying always to get himself or his leg wound about the rope. Then his hands began to slip. He sought to get hold of the rope with his teeth, but could not. Finally, just as he was about 60 feet clear of the water, his head fell back. He was utterly spent. He lost his grip, and plunged far down into the stream. When he camp up his face turned toward the great wave, and he feebly moved his arms in the breast-stroke. But the mighty rush of waters was too much for him. He was caught like a cork and was sent racing into the midst of the seething water. For perhaps a half minute he was in view, and then he disappeared in the spume.

Heacock's failure was witnessed by the man on the other floe. The woman, apparently, dared not look. The man appeared calm, as he in turn prepared to make a play against death, when, caught by a down-river current, the floe moved into the course Heacock had gone.

Tried to Save His Wife.

As the couple swung under the cantilever bridge, the man grasped a rope and tried to put it about the woman's waist. The force of the current was too much for the rope. It parted, and the man waved the torn end toward the crowd.

There was still another chance—the rope that was dropped from the lower steel arch bridge by the Niagara avenue firemen. As the floe went into swift drift, the man caught it and grimly hung on. He was given slack, and he tried to wind the rope about the woman's waist. He fumbled in his agony of effort, as if his hands were numb. The rush of the ice in the stream was overpowering. When he could not tie the rope about the woman, he let it go.

There, apparently, was no thought of himself. He raised the woman to her feet, kissed her and clasped her in his arms. The woman made as if to cross herself, then sank to her knees. The man knelt beside her, his arms clasped close about her.

They went to their death. The ice held intact until it struck the great wave. There it was shivered; there the gallant man and the woman at his side disappeared from view.

VICTORY IS WON BY LIEUT. BURT

Georgian Defeats Naval Clique by Senator Bacon's Aid.

Burt Will Be Promoted to the Grade of Lieutenant Commander of the Navy—All Accusations Against Burt Were Disproved.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, February 4.—(Special.) Lieutenant Charles P. Burt, of Atlanta, has been promoted to the grade of lieutenant commander of the navy, as the result of the finding of an examining board which sat last month.

This action follows a relentless fight which has been waged with great spirit during the past two years to put Lieutenant Burt out of the navy. Senator Bacon became interested in the case, and through his activity prevented what he believed to be an injustice to a young Georgia officer, and saved Lieutenant Burt from an unmerited stigma that would have attached to him throughout life, thereby winning the undying gratitude of the young officer. The annals of war furnish no more interesting story than this.

Senator Bacon's Work.

The record in the Burt case was a most voluminous one, but Senator Bacon went into it as carefully as though it were an intricate and important law case, involving vast capital and the rights of a great number of people. He believed the reputation of a young naval officer was worth saving, and that the later's life work should not be interfered with by a prejudiced naval clique. In consequence, he made it uncomfortable for a number of high officials of the navy department, and in the contest with the secretary of the navy, brought the president to realize that a grave injustice was about to be done.

Mainly through the efforts of Senator Bacon, to whom Lieutenant Burt was an entire stranger at the time this story begins, the latter's place in the navy has been saved, a serious accusation has been disproven, and a promotion secured.

The examning board, which met last month and unanimously agreed that Lieutenant Burt had the qualifications necessary for advancement, was composed of Rear Admiral C. J. Badger, Captains W. McLean, C. A. Gove, J. H. Glennon and H. P. Morton. These are among the most reputable officers in the service.

Captain Russell, a brother of Judge Dick Russell, of Georgia, reported in favor of the discharge of Lieutenant Burt, and insisted that the president had no right to order another examining board to pass on the case. The president held that his signature to the finding of the former board was attached inadvertenly, and overruled Captain Russell, the judge advocate general.

History of the Case.

Lieutenant Burt is a son of the late Dr. W. P. Burt, of Atlanta, formerly of Americus, and was appointed to the naval academy in 1892 by Speaker Charles F. Crisp. He graduated in 1896 as a cadet engineer, and was assigned to duty upon the Philadelphia, flagship of Rear Admiral Beardsley.

At the outbreak of the war with Spain he was sent to the Minneapolis, and in May of 1898 was commissioned an assistant engineer, with the rank of ensign. A few months later he was assigned to the Oregon, then at the Asiatic station. In 1901 he became a lieutenant, junior grade, and in October of that year he was ordered to the naval academy as instructor in steam engineering.

As an officer of the Baltimore he was at Tangier, Morocco, and assisted in securing the release of Mr. Perdicaris, an American, from Raisuli, the bandit. Later his vessel was sent to Chefoa, China, during the progress of the Russo-Japanese war.

Around the World With the Fleet.

Lieutenant Burt made the cruise around the world with the battleship fleet, beginning in December, 1907, as senior engineer officer on the battleship Georgia. That ship in reaching the Pacific coast was found to be in perfect condition mechanically and in no need of repairs. From Manila Lieutenant Burt continued the trip around the world as senior engineer officer of the repair ship Panther.

He was ordered before an examining board in November, 1909, to stand an examination for promotion to the rank of lieutenant commander. This board declared him deficient in navigation and also found that because he had been reported to the navy department for the non-payment of debts amounting to something less than $400, he was not qualified for promotion. This indebtedness Lieutenant Burt was steadily reducing by payments out of his salary.

Senator Bacon was appealed to by Lieutenant Burt and as a result of his activity in behalf of the Georgia officer, President Taft, acting upon the advice of the secretary of the navy, disapproved the finding of the board as to his moral disqualification and ordered that Lieutenant Burt be sent to sea.

Sailing from Norfolk, Va., on the Des Moines on March 31, 1910, Lieutenant Burt as the executive officer and navigator, brought the vessel on its initial run of 2,980 miles safely into port at St. Vincent, Cape Verde Islands, winning the congratulations of her commanding officer on his "landfall." This meant that he had sighted the port of destination in the direction and at the time calculated.

Saw King Manuel's Downfall.

After cruising around off the west coast of Africa, and thence going to Gibraltar and afterwards to Lisbon, Portugal, being present there at the time King Manuel was dethroned, the ship returned to Liberia and on January 4, 1911, sailed for Boston, Mass.

Four days out from port, Commander Luby, the commanding officer, died and the command devolved upon Lieutenant Burt. He brought the ship safely to Boston, having the body of the former commander on board. He made the trip of 3,000 miles in a little over twelve days, despite severe weather and a snowstorm encountered in the north Atlantic.

The reports given him by his commanding officer on the Des Moines were "excellent," and Commander Luby stated in writing to the navy department that he was "in all respects an ideal executive officer; also a competent and efficient navigator." All of his associates on the ship spoke in the highest terms of him.

Again Before Examining Board.

Lieutenant Burt was again ordered before an examining board in Washington on June 5, 1911. He passed his professional examination, his papers in navigation being perfect. The debts which had led to the reports of moral deficiency on his former examination had all been paid off. The president had overruled the finding of the board on this count, and Lieutenant Burt had made good on the second examination ordered by the president. But the board refused to accept this action as binding, or to consider that part of the case "res adjudicato," and again reported he did not have the moral qualification for promotion. This finding of the board was sent to the department by Captain R. L. Russell, judge advocate general of the navy, who accompanied it with a scathing opinion reflecting upon Lieutenant Burt.

Senator Bacon again prepared a statement for the navy department, and Acting Secretary Beekman Winthrop returned the papers to the board for further consideration, stating "The department does not consider the evidence of record before the board which convened November 22, 1909, of itself alone sufficient to show moral disqualification."

Failed All Along the Line.

The board again met August 22, 1911, and examined numerous witnesses, but failed to discover any indebtedness contracted by Lieutenant Burt in five years, failed in the effort to prove him a dissipated man, or to discover any action of his since his marriage, five years previous, that would not bear exposure. By a vote of 3 to 1 the board declared he did not have the moral qualification for promotion.

President Taft had promised Senator Bacon that he would examine all the papers in the Burt case when laid before him. The secretary of the navy presented the finding of the examining board to the president in Chicago during one of the latter's speechmaking tours and President Taft signed it with a number of other official papers.

Lieutenant Burt received notice of his discharge on November 30, 1911. He immediately telegraphed Senator Bacon and the latter communicated with the president with the result that the matter was held up until Senator Bacon's return to Washington last December. Then followed numerous conferences with the president and the submission by Senator Bacon of an exhaustive brief. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Senator Hoke Smith became interested in the case and also called on the president.

Captain Russell insisted that the action of President Taft in signing the order for Lieutenant Burt's dismissal was final.

The president took the position that his signature had been appended inadvertently and he directed the secretary of the navy to cancel the signature and remit the case for the consideration of another board.

In accordance with these instructions another board was constituted and on January 26, 1912, found unanimously that Lieutenant Burt had the mental, moral and professional qualification for promotion to the grade of lieutenant commander, and recommended his promotion.

MISS ELSIE LITTLE KILLED BY A TRAIN

Pinehurst, N. C., February 4.—The body of Miss Elsie Little, of the West Side Tennis Club of New York, who was killed as she stepped in front of a locomotive at the station last night while suffering from an attack of temporary deafness, was taken to New York today. Raymond D. Little, a tennis player of national reputation and a brother of the dead girl, started north with the body. Miss Little had been examining their baggage on the station platform when suddenly she started across the track in front of a train that was backing in. Her companion shouted a warning but Miss Little was struck by the locomotive and instantly killed.

Friends declare that Miss Little withdrew from the tennis tournament early in the week on account of a cold which affected her hearing. Last night she had stuffed cotton in her ear and is believed to have been confused both as to sound and direction when she started across the tracks.

Miss Elsie Little was the daughter of Joseph Little, a well-known publisher of New York City. She was a noted amateur tennis player.

Miss Little, a few hours before her death, had played a match set of doubles for the tennis championship of Pinehurst with her partner, Miss Wildey, and easily defeated Mrs. McLean and Mrs. Miles. Prior to this she had cheered her brother Raymond when he played a brilliant game and easily defeated Richard Bishop in the men's singles for the Pinehurst championship.

George Wiley Fatally Hurt.

Berlin, February 4.—Ahe American bicyclist, George Wiley, of Syracuse, one of the contestants in the six day bike race which began here today, suffered a fall while speeding around one of the turns which may result fatally. Wiley was teamed with Elmer Collins, of Boston. He was removed to a hospital, where it was said that he was suffering from concussion of the brain. He had not regained consciousness tonight, and is believed to be in a critical condition.

George Barker.

The funeral of George Barker will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in Poole's chapel, and the interment will be in Oakland.

HIRSCH FAMILY PAYS TRIBUTE TO PIONEER HEADS OF HOUSE

Ninety-Six Members of Immediate Relations Join in Making Golden Anniversary Unique and Happy Kindred Reunion.

An event of marked interest, not only because of the prominence of the central figures, but also because of the unique and interesting features surrounding it, was the celebration yesterday of the golden anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hirsch.

The celebration consisted of a reception atthe home, 265 Washington street, in the afternoon, and a family dinner at the Standard Club at 7.30 o'clock in the evening. The latter was attended by the brothers and sisters, the children, grandchildren, nieces and nephews—ninety-six in all, some coming from New York, some from Baltimore and more from other sections of the country, to pay respect and tribute by their presence to the pioneer Atlantans, who have been among the city's most beloved and universally esteemed residents since 1869.

Came From Germany.

Mr. Hirsch came to this country from Germany when he was 17 years of age. Mrs. Hirsch, who was formerly Miss Lala Hutzler, was born in Richmond, Va., where the wedding took place in 1862. They came to Atlanta seven years later. The firm of Hirsch Brothers was promptly established, the business then being conducted by M. J. and Henry Hirsch. The business has been kept up until the present day, the firm now consisting of Henry Hirsch and his two sons, I. H. and M. R. It is, therefore, one of the oldest firms of which the Gate City boasts.

Perhaps the most unique and the most touching feature of the pretty celebration was the repetition of the marriage ceremony of fifty years ago, Rabbi David Marx officiating over this inspiring event, following the dinner last night at the Standard Club.

Another feature of the dinner, illustrating the lovable democracy which has characterized the united lives of the pioneer Atlantans throughout their forty-three years in Atlanta, was the existence of a small table in the corner of the beautifully decorated club dining room, at which sat the family servants who had cared for their comforts throughout the vicissitudes and the happy events of the many years past. One of these servants had been with the family, without interruption, for thirty-seven years.

The immediate family consists of five sons, I. H., M. R., J. H. and H. Hirsch, of Atlanta, and M. L. Hirsch, of Baltimore, and one daughter, Mrs. L. B. Lilienthal, of Atlanta.

Mr. Hirsch has one brother, Joseph Hirsch, of Atlanta. Mrs. Hirsch has two sisters, Mrs. Amelia Hirsch and Mrs. Joseph Hirsch, of Atlanta.

Unique Family Ties.

The brothers of Mr. Hirsch bear the same name as the sisters of Mrs. Hirsch by reason of the fact that three brothers of the Hirsch family married three sisters of the Hutzler family. All are living except Morris Hirsch, who died in 1905.

Among those who came to attend the celebration of the wedding anniversary, which happens also be the sixty-ninth anniversary of the birthday of Mrs. Hirsch, are the following: Mr. and Mrs. Monte Hutzler, of New York, the former a brother of Mrs. Hirsch; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Wyman, of Baltimore, the latter a cousin of Mrs. Hirsch; Mr. Sam Brown, of Albany, whose daughter is the wife of Harold Hirsch, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hirsch, and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Bickart, of Baltimore, nephew and niece of Mr. and Mrs. Hirsch.

From people in all walks of life and from all sections of the country came present after present to the happy couple, wedded again after turning into the fiftieth year of their married lives—Mr. Henry Hirsch, aged 74, and Mrs. Henry Hirsch, aged 69!

And the myriad message-laden flowers from friends were no more flagrant with sweetness, no more colorful with life than the recipients who smiled throughout the eventful day upon the ninety-six members of their family who had gathered to accord them a deserved honor.

SPLENDID LINE OF BOOKINGS ANNOUNCED FOR THE LYRIC

Bookings for the future at the Lyric promise attractions that will be of more than ordinary interest.

For this week Emma Bunting in Fitch's "The Blue Mouse" will make things active at the Carnegie Way play house, and following in succession will come, "The Arrival of Kitty," a play that will be of great interest; "The Girl From Rector's," the popular comedian, Dave Lewis, in a big musical comedy success; then "The Girl in the Taxi," to be followed immediately by Ward & Vokes' "The Third Degree," Billy B. Van in a musical show, Billy Clifford in a comedy and later "The Virginian."

The shows were all booked early in the season and are returning east from the coast by way of Texas.

The Tom Terris associate players, twelve English performers, will appear at the Forsyth next week in an adaptation of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" entitled "Scrooge," taken from the name of the leading character of the famous Dickens story.

The presentation of "Scrooge" is expected to eclipse everything the Forsyth has ever offered.

Susie Rocomora, who was once a popular member of the Bijou Musical Comedy Company, is now one of the popular cards at Martin's in New York. The singing comedienne has been the star of the Cabaret at the cafe for six weeks and has an indefinite engagement. Some of the shows presented in the eating places of New York are costing as much as $1,000 per week.

The big story of "Fifty-two Weeks" is to be told very soon. The combination of Jake Wells-Mittenthal Brothers-Weiss, that forms the Southern Circuit Company, will give five acts fifty-two weeks consecutive employment, and with fifty-two theaters that means that 260 acts will be employed. The companies of five will move in a circle, until all the houses have been visited.

As spring comes on, theater-goers are commencing to guess what is to be prepared for them in the summer months. The theatrical season of bookings will end about June. The supply will be shut off from both the Atlanta and the Grand, and even the Lyric is to be without a service in connection with the circuit. The Forsyt will keep vaudeville going just so long as it is possible to maintain a standard of acts.

This is the time for the vacation to Florida so far as concerns some theatrical managers. Charles Osgood, the booking manager for Klaw & Erlanger, is already in the land of flowers and oranges, and others will follow immediately.

Harry Houdini, the handcuff king, who recently appeared at the Forsyth, is an added feature in a burlesque show in Washington this week, and will receive $2,500 for his services. He was booked to appear at Chase's, the fashionable vaudeville theater, but was canceled, because a copy act had appeared in one of the popular price vaudeville theaters in that city. Houdini accepted the engagement with the burlesque company just to show that he was a drawing card.

Marc Klaw and Lee Shubert have been touring Europe for attractions for next season. Both have connected with what they were looking for, and both claim triumphs.

It will cost $10,000 per week to present the Weber and Fields Jubilee at the Broadway in New York. In the late summer the company will go on a tour of the principal cities, with every principal that will appear in New York, and many of the chorus people. The attraction will open in New York Monday, and there has been a wonderful sale of seats. George Beban, Willie Collier and other great stars are in the company with Joe Weber and Lew Fields.

Miss Olga DeBaugh, the beautiful young woman whom Klaw & Erlanger selected to play the title role in "The Pink Lady," is one of America's most accomplished violinists and singers. She has made many tours in concert, and has remarkable talent. Her violin playing is one of the tremendously popular features of the production of the big musical comedy.

STARVED GIRLS IN ORDER TO CURE

Seattle, Wash., February 4.—The jury in the case of Mrs. Linda Burfield Hazzard, accused in the Kitsap county superior court, at Port Orchard, of having starved to death Miss Claire Williamson, a wealthy English patient, at the Hazzard "starvation sanitarium," returned a verdict of manslaughter tonight.

The jury was out more than twenty hours. When it reported, soon after 6 o'clock tonight that it had reached a verdict, court was convened hastily, Mrs. Hazzard coming in on the arm of her husband, a former officer of the United States army. Miss Dorothea Williamson, sister of the woman of whose murder Mrs. Hazzard was accused, was not in court.

When the clerk began to read the verdict the gas lights suddenly went out.

A bailiff sprang to the side of the clerk and began lighting matches. The first flare showed Mrs. Hazzard biting her lips in an effort for self-control. Her husband bent toward her, whispering. The clerk read on, the words of the verdict being emphasized by little flares from successive matches.

The verdict carries an indeterminate penitentiary sentence of from one to twenty years. As she left Mrs. Hazzard raged at what she declared to be the persecution on the part of the medical profession.

Mrs. Hazzard was arrested on August 5, 1911, on a charge of murder in the first degree on complaint of Miss Dorothea Williamson, aged 37, who alleged that her sister, Claire Williamson, aged 33 years, was starved to death by Hazzard.

The Williamsons were English women of means, who were on a tour around the world, and who consulted Mrs. Hazzard concerning their health. Mrs. Hazzard soon had both the women in her starvation sanitarium at Olalla, where, on a diet of orange juice and asparagus broth, Claire died May 19, 1911, and Dorothea was wasted to a skeleton.

As Linda Burfield, Mrs. Hazzard a few years ago was prominent in Minneapolis. In December, 1903, Samuel C. Hazzard, a former lieutenant of the Fifth United States artillery, who had been dropped from the army rolls for desertion, was arrested in Minneapolis for contracting a bigamous marriage with Ludia Burfield while married to Vera Fitzpatrick Hazzard, whose family is widely known in Minnesota.

Hazzard served a term in the Stillwater, Minn., prison for bigamy, and after his release, his former wife having obtained a divorce, Hazzard remarried Linda Burfield, and came to Seattle with her.

Before the arrest in the Williamson case Mrs. Hazzard had been in frequent trouble on account of the death of patients, eight having succumbed to the starvation treatment.

OVER 250 PERSONS ARE MAROONED

They Are Deprived of Food and of Medical Aid by Ice Blockade.

Deal Island, Md., February 4.—Owing to the ice blockade more than 250 persons, the total population of Holland Island, in Tangier sound, 12 miles southwest of here, for four weeks have been marooned from the mainland, deprived of medical aid and cut off from food supplies.

Residents of the nearest villages have been unable to communicate with Holland Island in any manner since a few days after Christmas. At that time, when Dr. John L. Ruby, the only physician on the island, came here, there were several cases of sickness. There are three small stores on the island, but it is thought their food supplies were exhausted some days ago.

Holland Island is practically level, a high tide submerges it. All the houses, of which there are about fifty, are built on piles.

Governor Goldsborough today directed Commander Howard, of the oyster police police steamer Governor Thomas, to make every effort to reach the island.

Six Oystermen Drowned.

Tilghmans, Md., February 4.—Six oystermen are believed to have been drowned in the Choptank river when their boats were carried into the open waters in the ice jam that began to move early this morning with the gale that swept over Tilghmans island. The ice boat Annapolis, up to a late hour, had found no trace of the boats or men.

THEATERS

"The Pink Lady."
(At the Atlanta.)

Klaw & Erlanger's greatest musical comedy success, "The Pink Lady," will open its week engagement at the Atlanta theater tonight at 8:15 o'clock. Since the inauguration of the present season theatrical patrons have been anxiously awaiting the coming of the production and will doubtless pack the new playhouse to see it. Plenty of choice seats are yet to be had, however, despite the record-breaking demand of the past few days. This is true because of the fact that eight performances are to be given in Atlanta and hundreds have bought seats for each of the nights. As a matter of fact not quite one-fourth of the house capacity has been sold for the engagement, which assures every patron of a fine opportunity to witness the charming comedy.

OLGA DeBAUGH,
Who plays the part of the Pink Lady at the Atlanta tonight.

Atlanta Players.
(At the Grand.)

The Atlanta Players' Club, which will present "The Climbers" at the Grand Tuesday evening is now holding its final rehearsals today, and everything to the smallest detail will be ready when the curtain is rung up tomorrow evening. "The Climbers" is one of the "smartest" modern plays attempted by the club, and local society is much interested in the presentation. The cast of characters is said to be the strongest and more evenly balanced ever gathered from the ranks of amateur Thespians and as the costumes and others accessories will be complete in every detail, the affair is expected to be one of the most successful ever put on the local boards by Atlanta talent.

Keith Vaudeville.
(At the Forsyth.)

With Nellie Nichols headliner, and six other acts, every one a feature, the bill for the Forsyth this week promises to be one of the vaudeville successes of the season. The novelty of the program will be supplied by the International Polo teams. Two teams of four men each, will make up the opposing side, and theer will be exciting interest. Ray L. Royce, the famous character actor, will present his monologue of type characters, making up, in full view of the audiences. Porter J. White and Company, present Oliver White's "The Visitor." Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher offer Ezra Kendall's rural playlet "The Half-Way House." Three Pendleton sisters, the acrobatic dancers, and the four singing Colleens, a female quartette of harmony, will complete the bill.

Emma Bunting.
(At the Lyric.)

Little Emma Bunting opens a week's engagement at the Lyric tonight in the role of "Paulette Divine," in Clyde Fitch's "The Blue Mouse." This play is Clyde Fitch's supreme farcical comedy success. It was a sensational success in New York, and its run the pace-maker for all succeeding events. Its tour on the road, when several companies were sent out to quickly cover the territory made an immediate impression and it is one of the most desirable offerings in present day theatricals. With a capable cast and a fine production the offering is going to crowd the family theater.

The Bijou.

For the week beginning this afternoon at the popular Bijou, the management promises something absolutely unique in the way of a bargain price entertainment. The specialty this week will be the Rusell Sisters in a spectacular dancing act, such as is seldom seen on a bargain vaudeville stage. The other acts on the bill will be LaRaub and Scotti in a comedy acrobatic stunt, Follette and Wickes in comedy singing and dancing, and Daisy Blondin, a dainty soubrette. Each performance will open and close with specially selected motion pictures ,of the Bijou brand.

Norfolk, Va., February 4.—Still another vessel has gone down to the bottom of the Atlantic, and her crew lives to tell the tale. The men were almost dead from exposure and two of them were unconscious. The men composed the crew of the schoner Frank S. Farms and Farmers

Address all letters intended for this Department to Col. R. J. Redding, Editor of Farms and Farmers Department, Griffin, Georgia

IMPORTANCE STRESSED OF ROTATION OF CROPS

One of the most widely prevailing errors of practice in southern farming is the planting of one kind of crop continuously on the same land. I have known fields on which cotton had been grown for as many as thirty years in succession. Ten years of successive cotton crops is not considered very remarkable; while four, five and six years are common. Even among fairly good farmers, the extent of rotation is merely a change from cotton to corn and corn to cotton, and an occasional partial crop of oats, or oats and wheat; but there is a lack of system—there is no regular rule of rotation.

If a farmer makes a good crop—a first-rate crop—on a field planted in cotton, he is strongly tempted to plant it in cotton again. He wants to make a bigger yield than he did. He wants to get one or even one and a half bales per acre. It may be a ten-acre field, or even fifty acres. So we constantly read accounts of farmers who have gathered twelve or fifteen bales of cotton from ten acres, or sixty bales from fifty acres, and so on, in case of the large planter. But, if inquiry were made, it might be found that in many instances the "balance" of the farm yielded less than half a bale per acre, and perhaps in some cases a large portion of the remainder of the farm gave but a meager yield of corn, and much of it only briars, bushes and gullies.

Get a Good Yield.

Now, I believe in the idea of trying to get a bale or a bale and a half, or even two bales, from one acre, or from each of a number of acres. Success on a small area proves the possibilities of similar yields on larger areas. They are educative and illustrative. But one should not conclude that the results from extra expense in preparation and culture and an enormous application of fertilizers per acre will be a safe guide to farming on a large scale. The question of profit should be considered.

I believe it is good policy for a farmer to practice intensive methods on a comparatively small proportion of his farm, and annually extend this intensively cultivated area as he gains experience and confidence. But the system that he proposes to adopt and extend on his entire farm should—in essentials—be practiced on the smaller area.

First of all, there should be a regular rotation of crops, based on a system that may be extended indefinitely, so as to eventually cover the entire farm. The advantages of such a rotation should be understood and recognized by every one, and I believe there are few, if any, intelligent farmers who would be willing to risk his reputation for good sense and sound judgment by arguing against rotation of crops.

Three-Year Rotation.

I have long advocated a three-year rotation, with occasional or temporary modifications—according to conditions. This three-year system is generally applicable to the entire cotton and tobacco region of the south. It is as follows, commencing, for convenience, with small grain:

We may suppose that a farmer cultivates corn, cotton (or tobacco), small grain and cowpeas as his main crops, besides potatoes, sorghum, vetch, crimson clover and other "catch" and "cover" crops, to fill in the chinks or gaps between the three most prominent crops—corn, small grain and cotton (or tobacco) I have here annexed tobacco, within a parenthesis, to cotton, because they are both clean-culture crops, covering practically the same season of planting, growing and harvesting, and may take or divide the same space in the system. Suppose the farm to be divided roughly into, say, five portions approximately equal in area. I suggest the following arrangement:

First Year—Small grain and cowpeas and cover crop, the small grain to be liberally fertilized.

Second Year—Cotton, liberally fertilized, and cover crop.

Third Year—Corn and cowpeas, moderately fertilized, and the corn to be cut and cured in shocks and the stover shredded.

This scheme covers three of the five parts into which the farm is supposed to be divided. The fourth portion may be in permanent pasture—say, of Bermuda grass.

By "permanent" is not meant that this pasture shall continue longer than from five to ten years—as may be determined by circumstances as they may occur in the future. I would have cattle and other animals to remain in the pasture field at night in order to save the labor of handling the manure.

"Cover" Crops.

By "cover" crop most farmers will understand that rye, vetch, common clover and other winter-growing crops are meant, and these are to follow the cotton and the cowpea crop in the fall. Seeds of these should be sown not later than October 1, if possible to sow them that early. September would be even better.

The above suggested rotation admits of several modifications, being by no means "iron-clad." No system should be inviolable and unchangeable.

On a farm in good shape—no very poor land—it works admirably. On a poor, run-down farm it would be well to run a four-year rotation of the three principal crops, by sowing in small grain and cowpeas two years in succession so as to accumulate humus and nitrogen more rapidly.

I was about to forget what to do with the fifth portion. The idea is to leave one-fifth of an ordinary farm for the smaller crops, such as sweet potatoes, sorghum and other provender crops, orchards and vineyards, garden, yards, etc. The plan is susceptible of any desired modification.

If space permitted it would be easy to show that if faithfully followed the farmer will find it necessary to largely increase his herd of cattle, swine, mutton, sheep and goats and even to introduce brood mares and raise his own work animals—for the reason that he will have more cowpea hay, oats and oat straw, corn—both grain and shredded stover—than the ordinary farm can consume. I have said, "that is the fix I would like to see southern farmers in, one time before I die," in reply to that very point raised by a listener among an audience before me.

The south ought to treble and quadruple the number of farm animals. There should be twice as many work animals, ten times as many well-bred hogs, five times as many dairy and beef cattle, besides sheep and goats!

FERTILIZER FOR IRISH POTATOES.

W. H. Herndon, Yorkville, S. C.—With your exerience, please let me know through F. and F. Department of Constitution what is the best fertilizer for Irish potatoes. I have 14 per cent phosphate, cotton seed meal, muriate of potash and nitrate of soda. Is there any better formula than 1,000 lbs. 14 per cent prosphate, 420 lbs. nitrate of soda, 250 lbs. muriate of potash? Is ther any better formula for corn than 1,200 lbs. 14 per cent phosphate, 500 lbs. cotton seed meal, 100 lbs. nitrate of soda and 200 lbs. muriate of potash?

Answer—See Formula No. 5, in the article, "Fertilizer Formulas to Supply Every Need," in the Tri-Weekly for January 23. By some oversight the printer failed to put in the caption "For Irish Potatoes." This is precisely the same as the one you inquire about and I presume you got it from The Constitution last year, or previously, as I have published it annually for a number of years. I know that Formula No. 1, given in the article above referred to, is better than the one you propose, and it has been annually published for a long time, to wit:

Acid phosphate (14 per cent)	1,000 lbs.
Cotton seed meal	1,260 lbs.
Muriate of potash	40 lbs.
Total	2,300 lbs.

Modification: Leave off half the cotton meal and replace with 300 pounds nitrate of soda, 40 pounds at planting and the remainder in two applications, the last not later than when bunching for tassel; 200 pounds of muriate of potash would be entirely too much potash, but on very light, sandy soils you might use 75 pounds.

A "GREENHORN" AT FARMING.

A. B. F., Lumpkin, Ga.—I have become a subscriber to The Tri-Weekly Constitution and I am a "greenhorn" at farming. Please give a formula for sweet potatoes on sandy upland, also Irish potatoes on same kind of land. Tell me how much of the fertilizer could be used profitably per acre. The land has been lying idle the past year. I would also like to have a formula for onions on same kind of sandy upland. I hear farmers here say that when they use commercial fertilizer liberally it causes corn to burn or "fire" on this sandy land. Please tell the cause and give remedy.

Answer—You will find in Tri-Weekly of January 23 a number of formulas for different crops. Formula No. 5 is for Irish potatoes, but the printer left out that information. If you cannot conveniently get sulphate of potash (which makes a more palatable, mealy tuber) you may substitute same amount of muriate of potash. No. 6 is for sweet potatoes. You may use anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds per acre of No. 5 for Irish potatoes, but if over 1,000 lbs. are used I would scatter one-half of it broadcast and the remainder well mixed in the planting furrows. Of No. 6, for sweet potatoes, 600 or 800 pounds may answer in 3½-foot rows. Apply the nitrate in either case as directed. Sandy land lacks humus (or decayed vegetable matter) and does not retain moisture enough, in dry weather, to dissolve and dilute the fertilizers. Hence firing.

No. 9 is for onions and other crops, but poor sandy land is not advised for onions. It would require perhaps a ton of No. 9 per acre on such land. Stable manure, pea and oat stubble plowed under and rotation of crops are the remedies.

You say you are a "greenhorn" at farming. Then permit me to advise you to avail yourself of the very best sources of information and qualify yourself as promptly and thoroughly as possible. Do not delay subscribing for one or more of the best agricultural journals to be had.

VARIOUS FORMULAS.

Jesse Lott, Broxton, Ga.—I want you to please send me a formula for the home mixing of the following analyses: An 8-2-2, 9-2-3, 9-3-4, and a 10-3-4. Will use the following ingredients to make same: 16 per cent acid phosphate, 12 per cent kainit, and I want about 10 per cent of the ammonia to be nitrate of soda, the balance to be from 50 to 100 pounds of dried blood that analyzes 16 per cent of ammonia, tankage, 10 per cent ammonia, and raw bone meal that analyzes 22 per cent available phosphoric acid and 4½ per cent ammonia. In place of kainit I will be glad to have the same formulas using muriate of potash.

Answer—Your several questions present rather a complicated problem. It is not usual to consider the phosphoric acid of raw bone as "available" in the sense that the phosphoric acid of acid phosphate is available, although it becomes available very slowly. So I leave that out. To get 8-2-2, or its relative, out of the ingredients named, mix as follows:

	Pounds.
Acid phosphate (16 per cent)	1,220
Nitrate of soda (18 ammonia)	30
Dried blood (16)	152
Tankage (10)	195
Kainit (12)	403
Total	2,000

The above would analyze: 9.75-2.44-2.44, which is the same relative proportion as 8-2-2, but nearly one-fourth richer grade. To make it 9-2-3 (relatively) simply increase the acid phosphate by one-eighth, and the kainit by one-half. To make it 9-3-4 increase the acid by one-eighth, the nitrate, blood and tankage by one-half and the kainit by double. To make it 10-3-4, increase the acid by one-fourth, the nitrate, blood and tankage by one-half and the kainit by doubling.

These three amended formulas would not analyze exactly to the grade desired, but they would each be relatively the same, or in the same proportion. Their respective analyses are easily determined by calculation. It is a very common mistake to think that any desired grade and analysis can be secured by mixing given ingredients. In some instances the result will be a higher, in others a lower grade. In case it shall be higher it might be reduced by adding the proper amount of "filler"—a foolish thing to do, it is approved by some writers. It should be of higher grade than desired it can be reduced only by substituting one or more lower grade ingredients. But there should be no difficulty in getting the relative proportions desired, and it may be done with any three or more of the ingredients on the market.

One thousand pounds of 10-4-4 may be increased to two thousand pounds by simply adding one thousand pounds of inert "filler," and the two thousand pounds would then analyze: 5-2-2, and 400 pounds of it would be just as effective (and no more effective) as 200 pounds of the one thousand.

I hope I have made it clear. If you substitute muriate for kainit you should use about one-fourth as much muriate, and the effect would be to raise the grade materially without affecting the relative proportions.

Did you not read the article on "Fertilizer Formulas" in the daily of January 22 and The Tri-Weekly of January 23? If subscribers would read this department carefully they may often find their contemplated inquiries anticipated.

COTTON SEED MEAL FOR PIGS.

S. P. Odom, Vienna, Ga.—I have some pigs that have been weaned too soon, and I will be forced to give them some extra food for their sustenance. Could I use cotton seed meal in limited quantities, say in "slops" about three times a week? It is held by some that the oily substance of the meal too seriously disturbs the bowels. Please name some suitable food for pigs two months old.

Answer—By no means feed sucking pigs on cotton seed meal, unless you wish to sacrifice their lives. Give them skim milk with a little corn meal stirred in it. It should be blood warm. Scaled oats, wheat bran, middlings, etc., are all good—better than corn meal. Let them have grass as soon as available, and keep up the oats, bran, middlings, etc. Cotton seed meal is deadly to young pigs, and older ones, too, unless fed in such small quantities as would give comparatively little nutriment.

CAPPED HOCK.

L. E. Barfield, Kershaw, S. C.—Will you please inform me if there is any treatment that will remove capped hock of mule? The mule is 5 or 6 years old. It is not lame in the least, but is somewhat disfigured. Any information you can give me will be thankfully received. I have been greatly benefited by your articles in The Constitution.

Answer—If there is any soreness or tenderness of the tumor bathe it three or four times a day with a well-shaken solution of half ounce of sugar of lead in one quart of water until all heat and tenderness are gone, or at once if there be no such heat and tenderness, rub well in on the tumor a little of an ointment made by mixing one dram of biniodide of mercury and one and a half ounces of lard. Repeat this ointment once a week for several months. Capped hock is caused by either kicks or bruises, caused by the point of the hock being struck by the singletree, or other hard object.

PRESERVING EGGS.

Boss Tucker, Ovett, Miss.—Is there a recipe for keeping eggs? If so, I would like to know.

Answer—Yes, there is more than one. The following is republished from the Tri-Weekly of December 12, 1911:

Dissolve one part of sodium silicate (water glass) in nine parts of spring water that has been boiled and cooled. Put the eggs as gathered from the nests in a stone jar (they must be cool and clean) until the jar is nearly full; then pour in the water glass solution until there is at least 2 inches of liquid over the top layer of eggs. Keep in a cool place. If carefully done, this method is reliable.

Another successful method is to slake two pounds of good lump lime and while still hot from the slaking add one pound of common salt. After cooling, add ten quarts of boiled spring water and stir thoroughly several times the first day. Then let it settle, using only the clear liquid, which may be poured over the eggs in a stone jar, or the liquid may be first put in the jar and the eggs put in as gathered, keeping the eggs always covered at least two inches.

FORMULAS FOR POLK COUNTY.

G. T. V., Cedartown, Ga.—My cotton land is what we call piney woods land. The most of it is gravelly; some of it has a black sandy soil. I make from one-half to two bales of cotton to the acre. I have been using a 10—2—2, with about 500 pounds of cotton seed meal to the ton. Last year I used a 9—3—3; it had about 800 pounds of cotton seed meal to the ton. Which would you prefer on my land, the 9—3—3 or the 10—2—2? My land is from six to ten years in cultivation.

One more question, and I am through: Some tell me that the tankage goods would pay me better than the meal goods. Write me your experience on this particular subject.

Answer—I understand you to mean that, in the first case, you mixed 500 pounds of cotton meal with one ton of 10—2—2; and in the second you added 800 pounds of meal to one ton of 9—3—3. The first mixture would analyze about 8.40—2.80—1.80, and the second 7—3.90—2.30. My opinion is that the first mixture was the better. But, why not buy acid, meal and muriate and mix as directed in the article in the Tri-Weekly of January 23, 1912? I think the 9—3—3, without any mixture of cotton seed meal, would probably suit.

I cannot say whether the tankage goods would or would not pay you better than the meal goods, unless you would give me the analyses and prices of the two. It is purely a question of analysis and price. One pound of nitrogen in tankage is no more nor less effective than one pound of nitrogen in the meal.

WOOD PRESERVATIVE.

A. M. Ball, Evergreen, Ala.—Please let me know through The Constitution what would be a good preservative for soap boards on outhouses, such as barns and smokehouses. Which do you think best—pine tar or creosote or coal tar?

Answer—Without doubt coal tar creosote is the best preservative of wood that is eqposed to the weather, but it should be borne in mind that the wood must be absolutely seasoned and dry when the application is made. I use a form of this liquid called carbolineum with entire satisfaction, applying the same while hot and repeating the operation within a short time—or as the first appears to be absorbed.

NON-BEARING SCUPPERNONG VINES.

Mrs. Geo. Koch, Hattiesburg, Miss.—I have two large scuppernong vines, five years old. They are an arbor and court 25x20 feet. They are very vigorous and would cover more but I trim them off to keep them from covering everything around, as my vine is in my front yard.

They bloom very freely and have for the past three years but only a few, say one in every cluster, stays on (or not even that many). The others make a little white fuzzie flower-looking thing about the size of a pin head and soon fall off. What can be done to make them bear?

Answer—The failure of your two scuppernong vines to bear full crops may be due to one of two causes. (1) It is possible to prune the vines too severely, thereby inducing too luxuriant a growth of wood, which is not favorable to prolific fruiting. (2) Some individual vines of scuppernong have imperfect flowers the stamens being reflexed or bent downward, so that the pollens formed by the stamens (anthors) does not reach the stigma—the little tuft at the top of the little pistil (embryo berry). It is not uncommon for grape vines to be entirely sterile, or barren, from this cause. Quite a number of varieties of common or so-called "bunch" grapes are hopelessly self-sterile, and may be induced to bear fruit by having varieties with perfect flowers planted close by, so that the pollen from these perfect flowers may be wafted to the imperfect flowers and thus be fructified.

The two vines you have may have been grown from layers made from an imperfectly flowered vine. Such vines are not uncommon in large vineyards, yet they bear good crops because of the pollenization by near-by vines.

20,000 PEACH TREES.

P. C. A., Barnett, Ga.—I have just taken charge of a large farm at Barnett and have about 20,000 peach trees in bad shape. The soil has not been worked in the last twelve months and the trees have not been pruned in two years. The orchard is 3 and 5 years old. Will you be kind enough to give me some information relative to pruning and spraying. Also recommend a plow that can be used for cultivating successfully. Would it be advisable to sow or plant between the trees? Should the trees be fertilized, and if so, what should be used? The season is late and I want to get busy as soon as possible. I would appreciate a very early reply.

Answer—I would get the entire surface of the orchard in good condition by plowing 4 or 5 inches and harrowing. This may be done early in February. I would at once clear away the top soil from around each tree down to the first roots and search out and destroy the borers, leaving the basin around each tree until about April 1, when a mound of soil should be heaped around each tree to the height of 6 or 8 inches.

About the last of February scatter around each tree to a distance of 5 or 6 feet about 5 pounds of a mixture of the following: 1,000 pounds of 16 per cent acid phosphate, 500 pounds of cotton seed meal, 250 pounds of muriate of potash and harrow in both ways. (D not tear up the roots in plowing.)

The latter part of February prune out all dead and stunted branches and shorten in those left pretty severely, so as to stimulate a good growth of new wood. If you have no San Jose scale it will not be necessary to spray this season. You may plant cotton—well fertilized—but have no rows nearer than 4 to 6 feet of the trees. You may plow and harrow, prune and fertilize as soon as you please. I am not prepared to recommend any particular plow or cultivator, except that I would cultivate the cotton with a Planet Jr. Cultivator.

FORMULA FOR SUGAR CANE.

Charles B. W., Chattahoochee, Fla.—I am planting 4 acres of sugar cane on old land that would produce about one bale of cotton to the acre. The land is high or upland, sandy gray loam. Would the following formula be about right for fertilizing it, if not, kindly give me a good formula through the columns of The Tri-Weekly Constitution? Say 200 pounds of 16 per cent acid phosphate, 200 pounds of kainit, 400 pounds of cotton seed meal and 200 pounds of muriate of potash per acre. Kindly advise if this formula would be all right, but if you can give a better one please do so.

Answer—Your proposed formula carries an excessive amount of potash. It would analyze 4.00—2.40—12.80. The following would be much more suitable: 1,000 pounds of 16 per cent acid, 1,000 pounds cotton seed meal, 16 pounds of muriate of potash. This would analyze about 8.00—3.00—4.50. Apply 800 or 1,000 pounds at or before planting (not in contact with the seed cane) and when the plants commence to appear scatter along among them 50 pounds of nitrate of soda per acre and 75 pounds per acre in the siding furrows when full stand is up, and another 75 pounds about August 1

FERTILIZER FOR COTTON IN ARKANSAS.

Isaac Gilbert, Welcome, Arkansas.—I aim to plant my cotton on rich, dark, sandy land, that will produce stalks 6 to 8 feet high. I want a fertilizer that will make this fruit up well without growing much more stalk. Please tell me what kind and how much per acre to use. Will a fertilizer composed of 12 per cent phosphoric acid, nitrogen 1.65 per cent, ammonia 2 per cent, potash 1 per cent, be good on this land? If so, how much per acre?

Answer—It is probable that you quote the analysis you found on the sack incorrectly. It probably is: "Av. phos. acid, 12 per cent; nitrogen, 1.65 per cent (equivalent to ammonia 2 per cent); potash, 1 per cent." In other words, the 1.6 per cent nitrogen is the same as 2 per cent ammonia. There is really no ammonia in it, but it has enough nitrogen in another form to make 2 per cent of ammonia.

I think the fertilizer might do very well, but I suspect that a simple acid phosphate and potash would be more profitable, say a mixture of 1,000 pounds of 16 per cent acid with 100 pounds of muriate of potash. This mixture would analyze about 14—4. Apply 200 to 400 pounds per acre before planting and at time of planting put in with the seed about 30 or 40 pounds of nitrate of soda to give the young plants a good start.

Geo. Moore's Farewell to Erin.

The literary life of George Moore is one long series of confessions. He pours the confidences which he no longer entrusts to the priests into the ear of the public. In view of the discussion aroused by the Gaelic movement and the presence of the Irish players in this country, Moore's latest confessions, which frankly reveal his Hibernian enthusiasms and disappointments, possess additional piquancy. It is now many years since Walter Pater, in a letter of congratulation to Mr. Moore, implied jokingly that he was half-shocked at himself for admiring the "Confessions of a Young Man." "Dear Audauin Moore," began the letter, which was proudly reproduced in a subsequent volume of Mr. Moore's reminiscences. Despite the passage of time, Mr. Moore has lost nothing of what the Oxford critic called his "Aristophanic joy in life," and the attitude of the London press towards his latest fragment of autobiography has in it a reserve as towards something un-English, so naive and sensational is this Irish variety, so doubtful is one of Mr. Moore's seriousness even in regard to himself, and in so intimate a manner does he portray his contemporaries.

AUTO SCOUT CAR LEAVES ATLANTA

Party Will Examine the Roads Between Here and New Orleans.

A large touring car will leave Atlanta this morning for New Orleans, via Chattanooga, Nashville and Birmingham, for the purpose of exploring the roads and making other preparations for an auto tour to run over this route in April. The tour will be given by the Touring Club of America, and is being promoted by a chain of hotels which includes the Georgian Terrace.

These hotels propose to operate a number of tours within the next twelve months, a majority of which will touch Atlanta, for the purpose of obtaining data of the different routes and to promote interests in the construction of better roads.

"The south now has 'good roads,'" said J. H. Waite, of the Georgian Terrace, last night. "What it wants now is better roads. There is no prettier section of the United States than the south, and none which has been less generally traversed by tourists. We receive inquiries every day for information concerning southern roads and routes. There is no may in existence which will give this information, so we are going to get the data and publish a handsome booklet for auto tourists. I believe that it will result in hundreds of tourists coming to the south and to Atlanta."

MONSIGNOR BURTSELL CROSSES THE DIVIDE

Kingston, N. Y., February 4.—Monsignor Richard Lalor Burtsell, a noted Catholic priest and pastor of St. Mary's church in Rondout, died today of pneumonia at the Benedictine sanitarium here.

Monsignor Burtsell was a member of the suite that recently accompanied Cardinal Farley to Rome. He was taken ill last Sunday but refused medical attention until Wednesday, when he was removed to the sanitarium.

After the announcement last week of Monsignor Burtsell's serious illness a cable message was received from Cardinal Merry del Val in Rome, conveying special blessings from Pope Pius X., of whose papal household Monsignor Burtsell recently was made a member.

New York, February 4.—Monsignor Burttsell received his latest title less than a month ago in connection with other honors the pope bestowed at the time of the creation of Cardinal Farley.

Years ago Dr. Burtsell, who was pastor of one of the influential parishes in New York, vigorously espoused the cause of Dr. dward McGlynn, charged with improper activities in politics, especially in connection with the advocation of the single tax propaganda led by the late Henry George. Dr. Burtsell was zealous in his support of Dr. McGlynn and following the latter's deposition, Dr. Burtsell was transferred to a rural parish in Rondout.

Dr. Burtsell protested to Rome and more than 50,000 persons flocked to his support by signing an appeal to the Vatican for his reinstatement, but the congregation of the propaganda at Rome sustained Archbishop Corrigan and the decision was approved by Pope Leo.

Later promotion as dean of Ulster and Sullivan counties came as some mark of his restoration to favor, and it is said that in conferring the title of monsignor upon him Pope Pius X. brought him back into full favor.

Dr. Burtsell was about 72 years old and was regarded as one of the distinguished Catholic priests in this country.

Seized by Murder Mania.

North Adams, Mass., February 4.—Suddenly becoming insane, it is believed, Andrew Cullen, 42 years old, a section foreman of a force of Hoosac tunnel laborers, shot and killed John Balzerini, aged 28, and Edward Williams, aged 63, members of his crew, during the night and later killed himself by shooting.

HOME MISSIONS

They're all coming.

Here's a letter we got last week from a progressive firm in the Cartersville district.

They had evidently been hearing about the RED SEAL Factory.

Here's the letter:

"Having arrived at the conclusion that there is no good reason why we shouldn't be able to get our shoes made nearer home, we have decided to write you to have one of your salesmen call on us. We only want about 20 dozen now. We will not obligate ourselves to buy, but will be glad to see your samples."

Rustle Bates got the word that night, and next morning was on the job.

The order of Six Hundred Dollars was shipped complete except one dozen, which will go with the Spring order next month.

That's the kind of endorsement that will build more Shoe factories in the South.

When a political controversy is on and they arrive at what is termed "The last word" stage, watch out for six solid columns.

Texas papers talk of Senator Bailey as a serious presidential possibility. Indeed, the running would be awfully serious to him.

Only time reporters hear him talk is when the Sagamore door swings wide and he says: "Walk right in, Governor; dinner's ready."

At the present cost of living those Oyster Bay dinners to Western admirers must be pretty big items in the grocery and butcher's bills.

"Governor Harmon doesn't talk enough," thinks The New York World. Wise man. Knows how to make the voters come back for more.

Mr. Taft has been assured that he will get the Ohio delegation—if the don't-go-back-on-home-folks' appeal works as well as could be expected.

Of the making of presidential possibilities there is no end, and much letter-writing and wordy war are a waste of ink and a weariness of the jaw-works.

"All whisky drinkers should wear a booze-button," is Dr. Wiley's latest recommendation. Many of them do, and find it very convenient. They have only to press the button and a pocket-flask opens, a drink is poured into a paper cup and—there you have it!

WHAT CO-OPERATION WILL DO.

As illustrating the power of co-operation, even on a small scale, to effect great things, we commend to the farmers of Georgia the example of the Cedar Valley Farmers' Club, of Polk county. It was this club that supplied the initiative for the probe of the department of agriculture, and that enlisted The Constitution in the fight that put the resolution through the house and senate.

For some time the farmers of this state had entertained vague feelings of distrust and suspicion of, dissatisfaction with, the department assumedly devoted to their interests. They knew they were not getting a square deal. They knew that somewhere, somehow, something was wrong—radically so. The functions ordinarily inhering in a department of agriculture seemed to be going by default. Complaints mounted. Protests and criticisms piled up. Here was a rich field for investigation, one belonging, it would naturally be supposed, to the Farmers' Union, which has wrought so well for the farmers in this state. Such an investigation would not have embroiled the union in politics. It would, as has subsequently been proved, have driven the politicians out of those fields of clover in which they have been browsing at the expense of the farmer—surely a non-partisan, farmers' organization task!

But even the Farmers' Union did not see the vague undercurrent of unrest, did not perceive the necessity of a basement-to-garret house-cleaning at the department. Elements within the organization scouted the need of an inquiry, there being, here and there, even a tendency hostile to an inquiry.

Up there in Polk county, all the time, was this club of farmers, without power, save of conviction, and without influence, save that of the righteous determination to get a square deal for themselves and their fellow farmers throughout the state. They grew tired of waiting for others to take the initiative. They saw things in the department were going from bad to worse, that daily it continued doing little but "playing politics in a legal way." Then these Polk county farmers laid the case before Representative Ault, their legislator. They asked him to introduce a resolution demanding a probe. Together Mr. Ault and the Farmers' Club asked the aid of The Constitution. They received it instantly.

The rest is history.

But the moral needs to be pointed. These farmers have, with the aid of The Constitution, won a fight against odds of which only those who favored the probe are aware. They have transformed abstract, but almost universal, suspicions into reality. It is their initiative that, in the last analysis, is responsible for the redemption that will be wrought.

Organization did it! If the farmers of every county in the state will read the lesson of the Cedar Valley Farmers' Club, as they reach the fruits of its courage and vigilance, they will realize that organization, however small, however apparently feeble, is the straightest road to securing their rights.

The lesson might be heeded, too, by the American farmer. For the determination and grit and co-operation that cleaned out the stables in Georgia, will put dynamite under trading upon the farmer elsewhere.

USELESS DUPLICATING OF PRIMARIES.

Two or three counties in Georgia have shown a disposition to call early primaries for the election of county officers, one county going so far as to fix its date for March 7. The Constitution suggests that, under the peculiar conditions prevailing in Georgia this year, such a practice is a waste of time and money and time that may easily be averted.

The gubernatorial primary will not be held until August, a date too remote, perhaps, to suit many of the counties that wish to designate county officers before that time. But there is another way out. At its December meeting the state democratic executive committee pledged itself to call a presidential preference primary. The committee is to assemble early in April to fix the day. Since the Baltimore convention is scheduled for June 25, it is likely Georgia's presidential primary will be called for some day in May.

Why should not the primary elections for county officers be held on the same day as the presidential primary? The arrangement would mean a large saving in money and energy.

Affording a double incentive to the voters, it would also bring out a heavier vote than if the primaries were held separately.

With the south likely to figure in the presidential running, it is especially desirable there be a full popular expression.

Holding separate county primaries before the presidential primary would save no more than a few weeks at the outside. It would, on the other hand, pile up expense and subject the voters to needless inconvenience—all of which could be obviated by the method above suggested.

BIRTHDAY OF MANUFACTURERS' RECORD.

On February 22 The Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, of which Richard H. Edmonds is editor, will celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of its founding. The occasion will be marked by the issuance of a special edition of The Record containing, to judge from advance sheets, the most comprehensive survey of the south's progress during these three important decades and the most intelligent prophecy of its destiny, that has yet come from this most authentic source of record-making of southern development.

Perhaps in a greater degree than any other one southerner Richard H. Edmonds has been the herald and the unresting apostle of practical development in the south. He has made knowledge of the south's resources, in each of their varied forms, his specialty. His intelligent optimism has galvanized into life countless new enterprises, and his faith in the south's future has never flagged through all the years that have marked his control of The Record. The section is under emphatic obligation to his trenchant pen for its clear, persistent representation of southern advantages to the world.

The Constitution congratulates The Record upon its thirtieth anniversary, with the hope that its gifted editor has many years of ever-increasing usefulness to the section he has served with such singular effectiveness and devotion.

THE "ROCK HILL PLAN" IN GEORGIA.

The "Rock Hill plan" for reducing the cotton acreage of the coming season from twenty-five to forty per cent has been formally launched in Georgia by the appointment of Frank Weldon, with a state-wide reputation as an industrial developer, as superintendent for Georgia. As told in The Constitution, E. J. Watson, commissioner of agriculture for South Carolina, and J. G. Anderson, of Rock Hill, S. C., author of the plan, visited Atlanta personally for the purpose of organizing this state. Already South and North Carolina have been organized, and the propaganda will be extended by Messrs. Anderson and Watson, with the co-operation of President Barrett, of the Farmers' Union, throughout the cotton belt.

The "Rock Hill plan" presents, by far, the most feasible system yet devised for holding the dimensions of the crop within reasonable limits. Its entire merit lies in its close organization. The state superintendent is empowered to designate a committee in each county, consisting of a merchant, a banker and a farmer—all thoroughly representative citizens in their respective communities. This committee, in turn, raises funds for a thorough canvass of the county, for the purpose of securing from each individual farmer pledges of the reduction of acreage deemed necessary. The county committees report to the state superintendent, and the latter keeps in touch with the superintendents of other states and the central governing body.

The Constitution believes if this plan is widely adopted, and followed, it will assure the south's prosperity next year. One thing should be borne in mind. Simple reduction of acreage in cotton is not sufficient. The percentage left off the normal proportion should be devoted to diversification, to the cultivation of such crops as will feed the south, cutting down to a minimum the hundreds of millions we now send needlessly out of this section. Another essential to the uniform success of the plan is that the landlord realize his interest in reduction and diversification is identical with that of the tenant. Where he now requires a certain percentage of lint cotton for the rent of land, he should lower it, so that the "cropper" may join the reduction propaganda. It will be palpable lack of business sense for the landlord to exact the routine percentage of cotton to the acre, if such action will conspire to make the cotton thus received worth incomparably less than the less amount of the staple he would receive under a reduction propaganda.

In Georgia the plan is in thoroughly competent hands. If effective organization is materialized throughout the cotton belt there need be little misgiving regarding sectional prosperity next autumn.

"Just From Georgia"

Her Hustling Proposition.

I.

If she takes a notion now
To propose, she'll know just how;
Racket old she will not spring:
"Wear for me this diamond ring!"
Hire a taxicab for you,
Pay the fare and parson, too.
This the Leap Year word may be:
"Hustle, if you'd hike with me!"

II.

Not a love song will he win
From a moonlit mandolin;
Never any honey-words
Set to music of the birds.
That was played out long ago:
It's the brand-new tune, you know.
This the Leap Year word will be:
"Hustle, if you'd hike with me!"

The idea prevails that it is Billville's time to name the presidential candidate, but if the country trots out a man after our own heart we'll stand aside a while longer.

Never git a bite!
It's snowin' long 'fore night;
Old Trouble runs the settlement an' ever'thing in sight!

III.

I ain't a-faultin' of it; it's Providence, you know,
Rains trouble on the righteous an' lets the wicked go.

MORMONS ARE STIRRED BY MOVING PICTURES

Salt Lake City, Utah, February 4.—Moving picture films illustrating stories in which the Mormons are presented in an objectionable way have aroused the ire of Governor Spry, and he has begun a crusade against their exhibition. Correspondence between the governor and the National Board of Censorship in New York, which passes upon all films before they are used, was made public here today.

Propositions have been made to him, Governor Spry says, that the state of Utah procure the suppression of certain films by the purchase of the films and copyrights. In a telegraphic reply to one of these proposals the governor said:

"I will never consent to Utah or any institution or person paying money to suppress these slanderous films."

TAFT YIELDS TO CATHOLICS

President Suspends Order Forbidding School Teachers to Wear Insignia.

Washington, February 4.—President Taft has suspended Commissioner of Indian Affairs Valentine's recent order which prohibited the wearing of distinctive religious insignia and religious garb at school exercises in the Indian schools. In a letter to Secretary of the Interior Fisher, which was immediately forwarded to the commissioner, the president ordered Mr. Valentine's action held up until a hearing could be given to all interested parties "and a conclusion reached in respect to the matter after full consideration." The correspondence was made public today.

The president said the question was "one of great importance and delicacy," as to which the commissioner had not consulted either with Secretary Fisher or himself. The president said:

"I fully believe in the principle of the separation of the church and state on which our government is based, but the questions presented by this case are of great importance and delicacy.

"They arise out of the fact that the government has for a considerable period taken over for the use of the Indians certain schools theretofore belonging to and conducted by distinctive religious societies or churches. As a part of the arrangements then made the school employees who were in certain cases members of religious orders, wearing the distinctive garb of these orders, were continued as teachers by the government and by ruling of the civil service commission or by executive action they have been included in the classified service under the protection of the civil service.

"The commissioner's order almost [illegible] amounts to a discharge from the federal service of those who have thus entered it. This should not be done without a careful consideration of all phases of the matter, nor without giving the persons directly affected an opportunity to be heard."

Catholic interests made vigorous complaint against Commissioner Valentine's order, which directed that those who could not conscientiously comply would be given sufficient time to make arrangements elsewhere than in the Indian schools.

TALLULAH FALLS DEBATE GOES TO THE NEGATIVE

The Junior Literary and Debating Society of G. M. A., gave one of the most interesting programs of the year Saturday night, January 20.

The program was opened with a declamation by Alexander Schlesinger. He was followed by Cadets Aubrey, Saunders, Seville and Foy, in a declamation contest. A decision was awarded in favor of Cadet Seville.

Following the declamation, announcement was made of the judges in the debate on the subject: "Resolved, That Tallulah Falls Should be Preserved by the State." Cadet Woodward made the opening speech for the affirmative; the first speaker for the negative was Cadet Drake. Cadet Luck followed for the affirmative, and was succeeded by Cadet May for the negative. All spoke well, and showed that they were thoroughly up on the subject. The decision was given to the negative.

The Sophomore Literary Society will give the second public debate on Saturday night.

FLAME-SWEPT VESSEL AT OCEAN'S BOTTOM

Norfolk, Va., February 4.—The British steamer Consols, cotton-laden from Galveston for Hamburg, flame swept, in a long futile race for port, sank early today, 40 miles south of Cape Henry. Her crew of thirty-four men, refugees on the British steamer Castle Eden, were landed at Newport News.

It was another triumph for intercommunication among ocean craft for the Castle Eden, headed from Savannah for Danish ports, picked up the wireless call for help from the imperiled crew on the Consols and rushed to their assistance. The battleship New Jersey, on her way north from the Guantanamo drill grounds, also heard the call.

The New Jersey sent the first word to shore of the rescue of the men by the Castle Eden after the fire which had started early yesterday morning off the North Carolina coast, and had gained such headway as to imperil the lives of the crew. The revenue cutter Onondaga stood by the burning vessel as it sank. The Onondaga returned to Hampton Roads today.

OHIO SOCIETY BANQUET WILL BE A BIG AFFAIR

The largest attendance in the history of the Ohio Society is expected at the fifth annual banquet, on Monday evening, February 19, 1912, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock at the New Kimball hotel.

Plates will be, as heretofore, $1 each, and tickets may be had at either the office of E. O. Pritchard, care A. & W. P. Ry., Fourth National Bank Bldg., or A. M. Beatty, manager Postal Telegraph Company, corner Broad and Alabama streets.

FIRE DESTROYS TRESTLE SPANNING FLINT RIVER

Americus, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—The partial destruction by fire this morning of a section of the Seaboard railway trestle spanning Flint river, 18 miles east of Americus, has delayed the operation of passenger trains throughout the day. Trains proceeded to the river and doubled back on schedules without transferring passengers.

The fire destroying the trestle started this morning, and is believed to be of incendiary origin. Assistance was sent from Americus and the fire put under control this afternoon. It will probably be Monday night or Tuesday before the burned trestle can be replaced.

WOODROW WILSON PRAISED BY DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON

Dr. Len G. Broughton last night indorsed the candidacy of Governor Woodrow Wilson for president, declaring that he had been made stronger by recent attacks. "It is impossible for us to consider the mission of the Christian church without landing into politics," said Dr. Broughton. "If I know anything about the work for the church to undertake, it is an attempt to supply every form of human need. It has no right to retire from any field where is being fought out the battle of man's needs. Politics is just as much a part of the business of the church as society, or business. The fact is, the redemption of society and business carries with it the redemption of politics. Politics makes laws, laws make standards of life and standards of life make the moral tone of a people.

"Who says, then, that the church is not in politics? The man who says it does not know the sphere of the church or is desirous of working unholy schemes which will pollute the moral atmosphere rather than clean it.

"Yes, the church is in politics, tremendously in it, in it up to the chin. She may not have been in it so much in the past, but she is going in it now. I have never seen the day since I have been a preacher that I was not a politician, and while I am soon to leave the country I am still going to be a politician.

"And I put the church of this whole country on notice that she is now on trial at this point; soon the people of this country will have to name a president, and the whole country is swarming with candidates. For the first time since Grover Cleveland's day the democrats have a good chance to name the president, provided they do not do as they are so capable of doing—play the fool between now and the nominating convention.

"There are a number of good aspirants for the honor, but there is in my judgment but one really strong man with the people, and that man is Woodrow Wilson, of Virginia, Atlanta and New Jersey. Everybody knows this who knows anything about men and measures. Of course there are certain subsidized interests who have recently strained at a gnat in his make-up, and vomited a lot of stagnant bile. But in so doing they have made him tenfold stronger than ever before with the people who believe in honesty of dealing, frankness of speech, and the untrammeled exercise of sound democratic principles.

"To my way of thinking, that great scarecrow of a few days ago set up by certain men who had personal interests to serve, proved to be the biggest expose of selfish conceit I ever saw.

"If ever a man should be honored for doing right, it was when Woodrow Wilson did as he did in expressing his honest opinion to his friend concerning his unwillingness to receive campaign money from the money grabbers of Wall street. I read the whole correspondence, and never was there a more dignified, courteous and statesmanlike transaction than that of Woodrow Wilson.

"I am for Woodrow Wilson, the Christian statesman and scholar, a man who knows no political boss, a man who, while loving the masses, is not unjust to the classes. He is the all-roundest, sanest, soundest, surest man in any party for the presidency of the American people at this present time.

"I hope and pray that Georgia will give him her solid vote in the convention that will nominate him."

BROUGHTON'S DREAM REALIZED BY HIS GREAT ENTERPRISES

By Rev. Will R. Owen.

Len G. Broughton has resigned the Baptist Tabernacle church of Atlanta to accept the pastorate of Christ church, London, England. Atlanta loses a prophet who has taught it a new meaning of the church of God; London welcomes a new apostle.

Broughton came to Atlanta fifteen years ago; it was then a town of 65,000 people. eH left a strong church in Roanoke, Va., and came to the weakest, most helpless church in Atlanta. He left a church crowded to the doors and came to a church empty, save for the hollow echoes that filled its bare walls. He came alone, against advice, in the face of quiet scorn and the kindly satire of good friends; he came with no hope but the wrapt purpose which had come from a vision, a vision of that day when the church of the living God should put the emphasis of service upon each utterance of its creed, and each word of its propaganda.

Broughton had a vision that had grown out of a pre-vision. The previsions had come while driving an ox cart loaded with wood in the country hills of North Carolina; it had grown when he became a physician and touched thumping, throbbing pulses, and cooled the raging of hot fevers in the heads of pleading patients, then the vision broke—the church must make loads of wood lighter on plodding oxen, give hope to the dreaming lad hid away in the hills, and must come into the room of every wan, worn and wretched sick soul, and woo them back to health, the while singing a song that should be sung in the name of the Nazarene.

All of the vision stands in Atlanta—a victory. A great church building, seating 3,300; an infirmary, filled to its capacity; a hospital for pellagra, a disease so dread that this is the sole hospital in America that opens its doors unconditionally to its victims; a home for working girls surging into this city, and saved thus from the restless, roaring maelstrom which sweeps so many into the great social arcanum about which righteous men only speak in whispers; and once a year a nation-wide Bible conference, bringing thousands from the far north and the distant south to ask questions of the doctors, to be answered by them—this, and more, is the secret ken of Broughton only, is the victory of the vision that led him on.

Atlanta misunderstood Broughton for ten years—as Florence, Savanarola, as Epworth, Wesley, as Worms, and Luther. The day of his vindication—his final victory, his unanswerable triumph came when the cornerstone to the last of his great buildings was laid. This was two years ago. Broughton's day had come.

I shall never forget the picturesqueness of it all, as he, like a tender child, laid the cap on the cornerstone to hi snew and great Tabernacle. He was so quiet, so gentle, so like a spirit—subdued conqueror in the presence of the power that had led him hitherto.

Now he stops to unstrap the burden from his bent back, to walk over meadow grass, and climb high hills—to rest; for half a year with no burden to carry and no loads to drag. He is going because in those years when he beat his strong hands against the bolted doors which his city would not open, when he set fire to his own heart that it might be a firebrand to touch the faggots that bound some gross wrong to the stake, in these years the relentless and ruthless extortionist whom we call Waste had insidiously gathered his tribute.

Broughton is turning his face to a new continent, a new horizon, and to a better day.

WHERE WILL SHOW OFFICIALS PLACE THE FAMOUS KILTIES?

The Kilties are coming for the Atlanta automobile show that opens at the Auditorium next Saturday afternoon. But where will they play?

This question was popped by one of the show officials yesterday when several of them were looking over the decorations and illuminations now being completed in the Auditorium.

"This is fine, very fine," he declared, looking around him. "But—but where are we going to put the Kilties?"

Nobody could answer. Everybody had been carrying around in his mind's eye a picture of the Highland costumed band, all sitting in several rows across the front of the stage. But the stage is to be used for exhibits, as is every other space that is reasonably available anywhere around the building. Exhibits are to be crowded everywhere. And there is no room left for the Kilties.

The show officials immediately went on a still hunt for vacant space, and all they could find was the platform over the main entrance to the big hall.

It is there, probably, that the forty members of the Kilties band will be stationed.

Since the Kilties are a large organization, and since they bring with them a corps of dancers as well as a male choir of the best singers in the country, they are not to be perched away just anywhere. They must be placed where they can be seen as well as heard. They will get here some time Friday, being on their way toward Atlanta now, and before their arrival Manager George must have selected some part of the Auditorium for their part in the general program.

It is probable that this will be one of the matters which the executive committee will discuss at its meeting this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Auditorium. Several other last-hour questions are to be decided, and the details of the week's program are to be mapped out.

BLIZZARDY WEATHER DURING COMING WEEK

Washington, February 4.—Bitterly cold weather will visit the eastern and southern states the first of this week, but there will be little snow or rain. The weekly forecast of the weather bureau tonight can see nothing but pleasant winter conditions generally after the cold wave shall have passed. The forecast says:

"Unseasonably cold weather the first two days of the week in the eastern and southern states will be followed by a reaction to the higher temperature in these regions by the middle of the week. Over the middle west, the Rocky Mountain region, and the Pacific slope temperatures during the week will average near or above the normal. There are no indications at the present time that another cold wave will cross the country during the coming week.

"The weather during the week will be generally fair except for a short period of snows and rains attending a disturbance that will appear west about Thursday and the eastern states Friday or Saturday. Frequent rains are probable this coming week in the north Pacific states.

"Stormy weather is likely to continue the coming week over the north Atlantic steamship routes and Europe."

WEST POINT OFFICER DIES OF PNEUMONIA

West Point, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—Albert McPherson, the policeman shot here a week ago in a difficulty with J. H. Lindsey, died last night at 10 o'clock. Death was caused from pneumonia, supposed to have been brought on from exposure to the cold after being shot.

Mr. McPherson was a young man about 25 years of age and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. N. B. McPherson. The funeral services will occur tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church. The body will be interred at Pinewood cemetery. He is survived by a wife, one child and his father and mother.

COTTON GOODS MARKET SHOWS SOME STRENGTH

New York, February 4.—The cotton goods markets have grown stronger during the past week. Slight advances are being secured and the demand shows more breadth. Users of goods are buying more contracts and are more disposed to pay current asking prices.

It was announced yesterday that 4-4 fruit of the loom would be placed "at value" and that 7-8 goods would be advanced 1-8c a yard. Wide print cloths and convertibles have advanced since last week and the trading has been more active. Of the 260,000 pieces sold at Fall River about 95,000 were for spot delivery. The demand for general lines of export goods continues and there have been further inquiries for goods for China shipment. Discounts have been shortened on wide sheetings and leading lines are well sold. Lines of duck and awning stripes are growing firmer.

Jobbers report a fair demand for merchandise from retailers who need the goods at once. There has been more inquiry for wash fabrics and for the finer grades of goods, while the steady call for spot delivery of wide heavy cottons and colored yard cottons continues unchanged. The improved market tone is attributed largely to the need of more merchandise on the part of retailers and to the firmer values current in raw cotton.

Goethals Talks of Canal.

New York, February 4.—Colonel George W. Goethals, chief engineer in charge of the building of the Panama canal and chairman of the isthmian canal commission, who arrived here today on the steamer Cristobal from Colon, reiterated his belief that the canal would be opened by January 1, 1915. Colonel Goethals said he was in favor of tolls for shipping through the canal, and intimated that he would bring this matter to the attention of the president. Colonel Goethals went at once to Washington.

Roof Burned.—The family of Morris Spctor returned home last night to find the stars winking through the roof and miniature lakes on all the floors, freezing rapidly. During their absence the house had caught fire from a grate and was badly damaged by both fire and water. The Spctors have but recently moved here from New York.

Carved Up at "Sociable."—At a negro "sociable" at 166 Auburn avenue last night, Mary Turner was carved about the face and neck in a rucus and had to be carried to the Grady hospital. She is not seriously hurt and was able to go home, 100 Young street, after being treated. She declared that she did not know who did it, and that there were many people present at the time.

Mother Signs Bond.—Mrs. M. E. Clay of 58 Clay street, went to the police station last night at 10 o'clock to make bond for her son, J. M. Clay, charged with violating the traveling blind tiger ordinance. "What are you doing here?" was asked Clay as he hopped from the prison into the call room on his crutches. There was no answer, and his mother silently watched him affix his signature to the bond for $300, signed it herself, and then went out.

His Pocked Picked.—J. C. Gowder, of College Park, was robbed of $39 in the press around a car at Mitchell and Forsyth streets Saturday night. It was carried in a pocketbook in his hip pocket and was slipped out by someone whom he remembered crowding him as he boarded the car. The thief is described as well dressed, apparently working the crowd for what he could get out of it, as Mr. Gowder did not think he had been "spotted" and followed. Several smooth swindles by gentlemen crooks have been reported to the police within the past ten days, leading to the supposition that some of them are making a sojourn in Atlanta.

TIFT PLANNING FOR GOOD ROADS

County Association, at Meeting, Takes Steps Towards Improving Highways.

Tifton, Ga., February 4.—(Special.) The good roads movement in Tift county was given impetus at the meeting Saturday, which had the largest attendance of any held since the Tift County Good Roads Association was organized. Plans were perfected for securing an uniform county system of roads.

A most significant feature was the large number of farmers present, showing the interest they feel in the move. Plans were forwarded for working the roads on the co-operative system, every man taking a section of road nearest him to keep in repair until it can be reached by the county gang.

A resolution was passed to appoint a vice president of the association on each main road in the county to organize the people on that road to improve it and keep it up on the co-operative plan. Another resolution was passed to appoint a committee to go before the board of county commissioners to ask them to run the countys road machine over all main roads of the county that have been graded.

Colonel C. W. Fulwood proposed the following plans, which was adopted:

To ask the county commissioners to employ a civil engineer to lay off the roads in the county and to estimate the cost of bringing them up to a standard by militia districts; then to ask for a bond issue to cover the cost of building these roads, according to the engineer's estimate; that when bonds are issued the sum be apportioned to each district.

LABOR MEN PREPARE FOR THEIR DEFENSE

Indianapolis, Ind., Feburary 4.—Anticipating the federal grand jury's report on the dynamite conspiracy, to be returned probably next Tuesday, men in many of the dozen or more cities where action is expected, have prepared for possible defense, according to information which reached government officials today. It was said men not only in Chicago but elsewhere have informed government agents they are prepared to give bond.

The grand jury will meet at 2 p. m. Tuesday for what is expected to be its final session in the dynamite cases. It is planned that if the indictments already drawn up against thirty or more persons are approved by the jury, the report will be submitted in secret as to the names of the defendants although the number of indictments will be made known.

United States District Attorney Charles W. Miller said today, however, that the number of indictments would not indicate the number of defendants because more than one defendant might be involved in a single indictment and more than one indictment might be returned against an individual. The indictments as drawn up, it is said, warrant the expectation of developments in at least 19 cities, scattered from Massachusetts to California.

Knox, emancipator of Scotland, and hero of democracy, will be the subject of his address at the Central Presbyterian church, on Tuesday night. John Wesley, regenerator of England, and hero of human responsibility, at the Wesley Memorial church, will follow on Wednesday. All lectures will begin at 7:45, except the last, which starts at 7:30. There will be no admission fee and no collection at any of the lectures.

He spoke at the Second Baptist church on Sunday evening.

SEVENTEENTH READY TO LEAVE, IF CALLED

If there is any intention on the part of the war department to send the Seventeenth to the Mexican border within the next few days, nothing of that intention is known here.

Reports from Washington are to the effect that troops in the department of Texas have been ordered to various points along the Mexican border, where there is apparent danger of an outbreak. The same report sets out that other forces, among them the Seventeenth, have been notified to hold themselves in readiness.

In speaking of the matter last night, Col. Van Orsdale stated that the Seventeenth is in readiness to move instantly, but that this is nothing new as it has been the case for weeks past. Further he stated that if there is any intention on the part of the war department to send the Seventeenth to Texas or anywhere else at this time, he knows nothing of it.

Are Trusts Economical?

J. S. Corbin, wrrting in the February American Magazine, makes the following report and comment:

"It is an error to accept as a fact that large corporations can produce any article of utility at a less cost than the original elements of the combination could produce it. There is a fixed limit, varying with the number of processes employed, beyond which the cheapening of a product cannot go.

"I formerly employed men enough in my manufacturing plant to match the different processes the product required. I personally gave each man an example of how to do the work he was employed for. I scarcely ever was away during the busy season, but each day was in personal contact with the force and working with them. We were brother mechanics. There came a day when it was best for me to sell the business, and I did so to a large corporation in a distant city, with an unwatered capital of $300,000 and a working force of 2,000 men. Under their method the shop cost per unit of manufacture immediately rose from $7.42 to over $10. This carried a loss of about one-third of the profit margin, for I had established the selling price and conditions were such that the corporation could not raise it.

"The reason for this increase is not hard to find. That most potent is the loss of esprit de corps—the spirit of the working force. A man bred in Gouverneur, N. Y., educated there as a mechanic, now working in Watertown for a huge monopoly, said to a social worker within the last fortnight, 'All they care for us is how much work they can get out of us.' I believe this is a universal feeling wherever large bodies of workmen are employed in one business. It leads to a restricted output, for the spirit of the corps is lacking. It leads to a less perfect workmanship, for the spirit of the corps is gone. It leads to strife and strikes, for the spirit of the corps is dead."

FEALY LECTURES AT THE LIBRARY

Will Speak Three Times in Atlanta, on Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. L. A. Fealy, of Birmingham, Ala., will lecture at the Carnegie library at 3 o'clock this afternoon and at 8 this evening and on Tuesday at 3 o'clock.

Dr. Fealy is a man of strangely magnetic personality and never fails to awaken the most intense interest in his talks, and those who have once heard him never miss an opportunity to be present at his subsequent lectures. His wonderful and complete grasp of the abstruse sciences reveals a most profound intellect and his talks, lighted as they are with touches of native Irish humor, are of enthralling interest.

KING AND QUEEN BACK FROM INDIA

George and Mary Reach England After Absence of Three Months.

Portsmouth, England, February 4.—King George and Queen Mary, who left Portsmouth on November 11 on the steamship Medina, bound for India, returned from their Durbar trip today. The Medina arrived at Spithead at 10 o'clock this morning, 14 hours in advance of scheduled time. She was convoyed by the cruisers Cochrane, Argyll, Defense and Natali, which, in command of Sir Colin Keppel, accompanied their majesties to the Far East. A heavy snowstorm obscured the view from shore, and the Medina slipped in without ceremonial or salute. She went direct to her appointed moorings between the lines of the welcoming fleet.

Their majesties will remain aboard until tomorrow morning, when the Medina will enter the harbor. The royal children, the Queen Mother Alexandra, Winston Spencer Churchill and the other lords of the admiralty arrived here during the course of the day. A family gathering and the official welcome will take place in the morning.

The Medina sailed from Bombay on January 10, and reached Gibraltar on January 30.

TYPOS TO FIGURE IN CITY POLITICS

Tax Collector Asked to Name Luther Still as Assistant Registrar.

Members of the Atlanta Typographical Union expect to wield considerable weight in local political affairs in the future if plans which were started at the regular monthly meeting yesterday afternoon are carried out.

A resolution was passed petitioning the tax collector to appoint Luther H. Still as an assistant election registrar. Mr. Still is president of the local union, and it is believed that he can get practically every member to qualify as a voter, whereas many would not otherwise do so.

There are more than 300 members of the Typographical Union in this city, and if they all qualify as voters they will have considerable influence in political affairs.

The union also made its nominations for the international officers, naming J. M. Lynch, the incumbent, and all of the other old officers.

It was also decided to extend to the Woman's Auxiliary to the Typographical Union a special invitation to attend the next regular meeting of the union.

A large number of routine matters were disposed of.

FOUR HOUSES ARE BURNED AT POOLER

Savannah Auto Engine Useless Because of Absence of Water Pressure.

Savannah, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—Fire destroyed four houses at Pooler this afternoon. Aid was asked from Savannah and the automobile engine responded, but failing to get any water pressure, the apparatus was unable to prevent the spread of the flames. The loss was about $6,000.

The fire started on the rear of a tenement house occupied by W. H. Wallace and L. C. Oliver and in a few minutes spread to an adjoining tenement house ocupied by J. B. Newton. A strong wind was blowing and in a few minutes a large brick dwelling that was unoccupied caught fire and the three buildings burned to the ground.

The grass in the rear of the burning houses caught fire and burned for a considerable distance, igniting an unused one-story house about 300 yards from the other burning houses. This house also burned down.

There was no water in the wells and the pumping engine could do nothing towards checking the flames. Numbers of volunteer firemen worked strenuously to prevent the fire from spreading to houses a short distance from those that were burning.

KEELY CURE INSTITUTES ENTITLED TO DRAWBACK

Washington, February 4.—(Special.) Keely Cure Institutes of the country, which have been paying, under protest, the tax imposed by the government on retail liquor dealers, will be entitled to a drawback amounting to $14,000 under a new ruling of Commissioner Cabell, of the treasury department.

While the retail tax is demanded of hospitals where liquor is sold to patients and each drink charged, the government has decided that the tax need not be paid where liquor is supplid as part of the regular treatment without tax charge. There are eighty-five institutions throughout the country who will be effected by the new ruling.

CHURCH BURNED; PARSONAGE FIRED

Political Enemies May Have Taken Revenge on Fort Worth Minister.

Fort Worth, Texas, February 4.—Fire, believed by the fire department to have been of incendiary origin, early today destroyed the First Baptist church, of Fort Worth. Shortly afterward the residence f Rev. J. Frank Morris, pastor of the church, was found to be on fire. A lot of blazing oil-soaked rags and paper was found on the back porch. The Rev. Mr. Morris and his wife succeeded in extinguishing the blaze at their home before much damage resulted. The church was valued at $80,000.

The Rev. Mr. Morris for several months has taken considerable interest in local politics. What was apparently an attempt to burn the church was made on January 10, and a few nights later two shots were fired at the pastor while he sat in his study. The shots did no damage.

Council will also act upon the street and sewer work which has been mapped out for the year by committees.

There will be no report from the electric light committee on contracts for White Way lights, as the committee will not meet again until Tuesday of next week.

The place soon became very much inflamed, and the young man suffered very greatly from it. MEN MUST ENTER INTO BOY SPIRIT

Philip Weltner Speaks to Large Audience on Care of the Boy.

Taking as his subject "The Boy," Philip Weltner, the new assistant solicitor general of the children's court, and a man who has been engaged in work among boys for the past several years, spoke to an audience that filled the lower floor of the Baptist Tabernacle yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

He considered the boy in all stages of life and spoke of the temptations which surround every youth living in modern times and especially of those which beset the working lad. Mr. Weltner is chairman of the boys' work committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

Put Arms Around the Boy.

"Many more times than the Gospels relate, the Master must have put His arms around the shoulders of some dirty little gamin on the street of Jerusalem and pointed the way to God," said he.

"If Christ felt the need of becoming carnate that men might know Him, what need is so great as that men should make themselves boys, enter into the boy spirit, in order that they may influence the boy spirit in the right direction. Evolution of the man is not complete with the birth of the manchild. The nature of the infant is essentially selfish.

"The boy's progress in life is marked through the ever-widening circles of his social sphere. When the boy makes all acquaintances a part of his sphere comes the first problem of the home. Shall mother turn aside in indifference, shall she fight to keep undisputed her sway, or shall she make homelife so attractive that wherever the boy goes it will be the lodestar which draws him back?

"Just after this time the next problem comes unexpectedly. The ideas become diversified and he undergoes a moral, physical, spiritual and intellectual growth. The period of adolescence is at hand. The mystery of a new life enchants him. Irresistibly he is drawn into the maelstrom of new temptations and new experiences. He is not a little man, he is a growing man, measuring into the stature of manhood.

Father's Opportunity.

"This is the father's opportunity. The boy wants to know the plain, unvarnished facts of life and is done with fables. If the father does not instruct him he is sure to pick them up somewhere, probably from the city street, where the version is sure to be garbled to suit the moral standards of the brainless braggart. A prudery which steps between the father and son is the green-goods of the devil.

"On the street the boy is constantly exposed to temptations so varied as to be almost legion. Among the worst of these is cigarette smoking, weakening both his mind and body, tearing down his moral strength and paving the way to other evils.

"The moving picture theaters where cheap vaudeville is shown is another which tends to influence his mind powerfully in the wrong direction. His older companions at these shows invariably cause him to taink new and licentious thoughts, and from these spring horrors unmentionable.

"Child labor, weakening the body, stupifying the active mind, stinting the growth, causing the child to become an old man before he is even grown, is another thing equally harmful. Not until child labor is done away with can the state hope to have efficient citizens from the class from which the factories, etc., recruit. The boy messenger service is one of the worst forms of this work. Taking youths into every imaginable resort, exposing them to all temptations, influencing them in every imaginable way, its dangers are beyond number.

"Constant work, the effecting of reforms in the law, the making of new laws, all will do much toward obviating the devil, but it is a work of many years and of much travail."

CHURCHES HAVE NO APPEAL TO THE BOYS OF ATLANTA

"Churches Cold and Unsympathetic as a Rule"—Dr. A. R. Holderby.

"The Salvation of the Boy" was the subject of Dr. Holderby's sermon at Moore Memorial church Sunday morning and was in the line of the theme suggested by the "Men and Religion Movement."

"The boy of today will be the Man of tomorrow," said Dr. Holderby.

Within less than a decade, the church, society and the nation will be committed to the hands of the boys of today. The safety of the church, of society and of the nation will be largely determined by the character of the men who are being developed from the boys of today.

"The vital question, then, is 'How to save the boys and bring them up to the highest type of christian manhood?'

"Why wait until the boy becomes a criminal before we attempt to save him? He can be saved and must be saved before he enters upon a criminal life.

"It is the wayward boy—the incorrigible boy who demands especially the care of the church.

"I have just returned from a tour through Georgia and a part of Florida, in company with Rev. Crawford Jackson, in the interest of the wayward boys of the south.

"We spoke in many places in the interest of the 'Juvenile Protective Work' and found many men deeply interested in the 'bad boy problem.' A chance is all that many wayward boys need.

"Let's give the bad boy and even the criminal a chance to live the better life.

"The churches do not appeal to the boy. Why are not the boys found in the churches?

"Where one boy is found in the churches or Sunday schools, ten will be found lounging around dives of the city. As a rule the churches are cold and cheerless and unsympathetic. Some of them are veritable cold storage concerns devoid of the spirit of love and sympathy.

"Neither do long sermons, long prayers and a sanctimonious religion attract the boys and hence they are drifting away from the church into places which offer something attractive. The church is responsible for the salvation of the wayward boy."

"There Is Not a Real Boys' Church in the City."—Dr. B. P. Robertson.

"Boys' Work" was the topic of Dr. Robertson's sermon Sunday morning at the Central Baptist church.

He said "that the greatest problem confronting the churches of Jesus Christ in the cities is the boy problem." In dealing with the boy the christian worker comes into touch with his ancestry, his father especially, his home, his school, his church and his community.

"The boy receives from his ancestry a certain physical, intellectual and moral trend of life. The immoral burden which the boy receives from his ancestry hinders all efforts of the boy and the worker in the effort to attain unto the ideal life for a man. The father is the final appeal of the boy in all matters of counsel and he is the supreme example for the boy in all spheres of life. The paramount idea with the boy is that father says so and so and this is the way father does and I know it is all right. As to the home there are very few homes which may be really termed boy homes, because they are not adapted to the boy life. The father in the home needs to become a companion to the boy; the home needs to become a rendezvou for the boy in order that the boy may enjoy it. And besides this the family altar needs to be maintained and the boy made to participate in the family worship. But there are very few homes thus conducted.

"There is needed that ruggedness and puritanism in the home that will develop a real manly man out of the boy. Then as to the school for the boy there are hardly any schools in the country which are exactly adapted to the education, training and the development of the boy to make a stalwart man out of him.

"I may seem very radical when I say that there is not a real boys' church in our city. But I am convinced that there is not because there is not a church that catches and holds the boys through that most critical period of their lives.

"If we are going to make out of the boys of Atlanta the men that God intended that we should make out of them, we are going to have to readjust our homes to that end.

"Again there will have to be a readjustment of the schools for boys to the making of men out of the boys. The present system as a rule develops efficiency in the boys rather than manliness in their lives. Some of the old time schools were better suited to the making of men out of our boys.

"Every church should have a boys' department under the direction of a suitable man, with as many male assistants as he may need. The church should afford a gymnasium, manly games for indoors and outdoors, a library and reading room just for the boys, a senate for the cultivation of public address, and special services conducted by the boys just for the boys."

RECORD ESTABLISHED BY TRION BANKRUPTCY CASE

Rome, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—The bankruptcy case of the Trion Manufacturing Company, located at Trion, Ga., is the largest case ever filed in north Georgia. It was adjudicated on Saturday and sent to the referee at Rome. The report of the auditor shows nominal assets of $1,636,467. Actually they are said to be $978,465. The liabilities are $901,353, with contested claims of $41,167 and the stock of the company, which amounts to $800,000. These figures are taken from the auditor's report as made to Receiver J. P. Cooper.

The report shows that there was a loss of $329,888 of the mill's money in cotton speculation, and that the former president personally, as guardian and as agent, owes the Trion Manufacturing Company the sum of $161,329. The mill is being operated under the receiver and will so continue until the trustee is elected at the first meeting of creditors, and a sale had under order of the court. The bankruptcy case of the former president, A. S. Hamilton, was also adjudicated at the same time. It is thought his assets will foot up $30,000 to $40,000 with liabilities at present unknown.

OFFICERS DETERMINED FOR NEW LOAN SOCIETY

Although no authoritative announcement has been made, it is understood that the organization committee of the new association of wholesale merchants who have formed a model loan plan to assist needy retailers, have practically determined upon the officers who will direct the work.

W. O. Stamps is said to be slated for the presidency while Alfred Kelly will serve as first vice president. C. B. Logan will be asked to serve as chairman of the loan committee, one of the most important offices.

The association is composed almost entirely of wholesale dealers and its purpose is to make short loans to retail merchants who are in need of small sums to escape reverses in business. For two years or more the matter has been under contemplation, but it was not until recently that the details for the organization and its work were completed. The association will have a capital stock of $25,000. The feature of the work is that in making loans the association will not limit members of the trade to strictly banking collateral as security, but will undertake to furnish those who are unable to furnish such collateral by a co-operative plan through their creditors.

JUDGE BRAND LEAVES TO ATTEND WIFE'S BEDSIDE

Athens, Ga., February 4.—(Special.) Judge Brand and his three daughters left yesterday for Baltimore, called to that city by the news of the critical illness of Mrs. Brand, who is in the Johns Hopkins hospital there for surgical treatment.

Judge Brand may be away for several days or weeks and he has secured Judge J. B. Jones, Gainesville, Northeastern circuit, to preside over the Jackson county court, which opens at Jefferson tomorrow morning. Judge B. F. Walker, of the new Toombs circuit, will serve at Jefferson the second week for Judge Brand. At Monroe Judge H. C. Hammond has been secured to preside over the Walton superior court, spring term. Judge Brand has himself been in wretched health for several weeks and is not physically able to attend to the duties of active sessions of court.

"CLIMBERS" HOLD DRESS REHEARSAL

Mrs. Ida Howell Cramer, who is one of the handsome women taking part in "The Climbers," on the left, and Miss Helen Cowles, the beautiful daughter of Mr. Paul Cowles, on the right. She has a part in the play. The Atlanta Players will appear at the Grand on tomorrow evening.

The first make-up rehearsal of "The Climbers" by the Players' Club at the Grand last night, showed that the performance of Fitch's most brilliant comedy, on Tuesday night will be one of the memorable artistic successes of the organization.

The members of the cast were, of course, letter perfect in the roles, and in addition they imparted a life and enthusiasm to the rehearsal which is bound to "put it across" tomorrow night. None of the stiffness of an ordinary amateur organization is discoverable.

The club has beendeavoring above all to obviate any tiresome waits and the performance moved with a remarkable smoothness. Several changes have been made in the text, to bring out the points for a 1912 audience.

"What did you get for Christmas?" is asked of one of the best characters in the play.

"Two umbrellas and three copies of "The Black Mantle," he replies. "David Harum" read the original text.

"Rhoda, Rhoda, lived in a Pagoda," from "San Toy" has given place to other selections and similar changes have been made where advisable.

The settings for the play have been especially secured for the occasion and will add to the artistic completeness. The dress rehearsal will be given tonight.

STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE HAS MADE SPLENDID PROGRESS

Wonderful progress has been made by the state college of agriculture since its reorganization in 1906, according to Captain J. J. Conner, of Bartow county.

Captain Conner is the president of the board of trustees. While he was a member of the legislature he introduced the bill which established the present college.

"As is generally known to the people of Georgia the college was established by act of the legislature in 1872," said Captain Conner during a recent visit to Atlanta. "But until the act of 1906 no provision whatever was made by the state for the equipment of the institution.

"Hence, up to that time, the college had made but meager progress. Indeed it had grown somewhat unpopular and the impression prevailed in some quarters at least that its lack of progress was due to the fact that it was overshadowed by the great classical university.

"As is often the case in matters of this character the effect was traced to the wrong cause. This condition of affairs made it difficult for the friends of greater progress in our agricultural interests to get through the legislature the bill reorganizing the college and providing for its equipment and maintenance as an integral part of the university. But energy and perseverance finally accomplished the passage of the bill appropriating $100,000 for buildings and equipment.

"The same bill placed the college under a separate board of trustees to be composed of farmers. This board of trustees has wisely and judiciously coordinated the work with the university and now it is preeminently apparent that the college is an integral part of the university is a blessing, as a saving of cost in student instruction is thereby accomplished as well as according to the students in the college of agriculture all the advantages which the atmosphere of a university can confer.

"Prior to the passage of the bill reorganizing the college, the citizens of Athens and other friends of agricultural education contributed funds for the purchase of a farm containing over 730 acres and donated the same to the state to be used as a college farm.

"In the fall of 1907 work on the erection of the college building was begun, and it was dedicated January 18, 1909. The building has thus been occupied less than three years. The growth of the college since that time has been remarkable. Three years ago there were twenty-three men in the long courses, and already the present year 160 men have matriculated. These do not include short course students, and those charged with the administration of the college believe that fully 300 men will be under instruction this year. There are sixty men in the freshman class, and Georgia probably now has the largest number of young men taking advanced courses in agriculture of any state in the south.

"The standards of the institution are unusually high, fourteen units of entrance being required. On this account the federal department of education has seen fit to commend the college very highly, especially as an institution designed to give thorough training in agriculture to both undergraduate and graduate students, and to successfully promote research work. All who are interested in agricultural advancement realize that research work forms the keynote to successful teaching and development, not only of the life of the student, but of the service and usefulness of the professor as well.

"The college is beautifuly situated on an eminence called Lumpkin Hill overlooking the classic city of Athens. The farm, which was in very bad physical condition several years ago, has been wonderfully improved. Roadways have been opened up through it, gullies filled up, and rocks and stumps removed until now some very fine fields are available for cultivation. The land has been fenced, and there are now on the farm 150 head of live stock.

"The foundation has been laid for breeding horses, pure-bred Jerseys and Holsteins, and Tamworth and Berkshire hogs. There is also a herd of Hereford beef cattle maintained on the farm. Every part of the farm is being utilized as a laboratory for the instruction of students, and data of great value is being accumulated for use through the extension department of the college.

"The college grounds have been landscaped and present a very attractive appearance. A laboratory for the work of the veterinary department has been constructed and a contract has been let for a farm mechanic's laboratory which will provide excellent facilities for instruction in this line of work so essential to the advancement of Georgia's agriculture.

"There is a demonstration field on the college farm where breeding work with corn, cotton and other crops is carried on. Some most interesting results have already been secured. The college believes that its sunbeam cotton, for instance, is resistant to anthracnose, which costs the state many millions of dollars a year. This seed is now being cultivated in various sections of the state. It gave excellent results as to yield the present year and proved resistant to disease as well. The college hopes to distribute some improved strains of corn next year. There is an attractive and up-to-date horticultural department with orchards and gardens covering some thirty-five acres of land. A number of very substantial barns have been erected on the farm, and a commercial dairy is operated so the students may be instructed in this phase of live stock farming.

"The college has a staff of twenty professors who are experts and leaders in their special lines, several of them enjoying international reputation. Especially is this true of Dr. A. M. Soue, the president of the college.

"The laboratories are admirably equipped and the students are enthusiastic about their work. It will thus be seen that a revolution in agricultural instruction in Georgia is being accomplished. This has been done without blazoning the fact to the world, and the possibilities are that many Georgians do not know and appreciate what has been done by the college or what its work has meant and means to the people of the state.

"The college, different from other institutions, has not confined its efforts and energies to work in Athens, but has reached out to serve the people in all parts of the state. This has been accomplished through its extension department, which the state has seen proper to endow more liberally through action of the last legislature. Since the reorganization of the college it has accomplished an immense amount of work in the extension line, which has been done at a great expense of labor and self-sacrifice on the part of those who have executed the work.

"It is proper here to remark that the railroad companies have rendered to the state an incalculable service in furnishing the use of their road beds, engines, trains, fuel and hands to operate the trains for the college on wheels, absolutely without charge to the state. This perhaps cost the railroads for the two years that the college on wheels was operated the sum of $50,000.

"Through this instrumentality and through the farmers' institute work of the college no less than 750,000 people have received instruction at the hands of the college other than the work which the college has done at Athens.

"Now, that the college has had a material effect in advancing the welfare of Georgia, all will admit. The state has recently jumped from tenth to fourth place in agricultural production. There are now some 6,500 boys and girls in the corn and canning clubs; over thirty of these boys the present year produced more than 100 bushels of corn per acre and many of them produced this corn at a cost of from 17 to 30 cents per bushel. As a result of the development of the corn and canning clubs the work of the rural school is being redirected, and more closely related to the home. This within itself is an accomplishment of far-reaching proportions.

"Yes, indeed! Great is the progress of the State College of Agriculture. For in less than four years the efficient men of that college have not only dissipated the former prejudice among our people against scientific training and research in agriculture, but their efforts along that line have been so effective as to fire the large bulk of our people with enthusiasm for that sort of practice in agriculture. The result of this change of sentiment among our people for a greater, grander, higher and nobler existence is so patent and so apparent that he who runs may read.

"Although the college has accomplished results far in advance of what its most sanguine friends believed possible, it is being organized and pushed along lines where it is believed the greatest good to the greatest number will be accomplished. It is doing its work with 'charity towards all and malice towards none.' With the support which the institution deserves at the hands of the people of Georgia, still greater things may be expected in the future."

A WORLD OF GOOD

The Painful Experience of Mrs. Marvin, and How She Found Help, by Herself.

Sheldon, S. C.—"For more than three years," says Mrs. J. B. Marvin, of this place, "I suffered with womanly troubles, and none of the doctors that treated me could do me any good.

I also had pains in my left side so bad at times I could hardly get up.

Finally I tried Cardui, and soon I began to feel better. I took only a few bottles, but now I am perfectly well, and able to do anything.

Cardui has done me a world of good. It certainly cured me of the trouble I had, and I am getting along nicely.

I have recommended the remedy to other sufferers, and they have all been benefited by it.

I will always keep Cardui in my home for use in time of need."

Cardui is a mild and effective tonic for women, that has been found, by actual use, during more than fifty years, to quickly relieve the ailments to which all women are peculiarly liable.

The prompt and satisfactory action of this well-known woman's remedy is due to its gentle, building action, on the womanly constitution.

Cardui has helped thousands of others, and that is a good reason why it will help you, too. Please try it.

ATLANTA MISS INTRODUCES TURKEY TROT TO GAINESVILLE

Gainesville, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—A bewitching Atlanta girl who wouldn't refuse a dare last night introduced Gainesville society to that naughty "Turkey Trot," "The Grizzly Bear" and the "Boston Dip." While most of the dancers gazed on in astonishment, and "made remarks," others quit dancing and watched in silent envy.

The dance was given in honor of the University of Georgia Glee Club and was held in one of the city's select ballrooms. It was a greatly anticipated occasion, and society turned out almost as a whole.

When the evening was well under way, a member of the Glee Club requested a "Turkey Trot" selection by the orchestra. Then he looked about for a partner as bold as he.

"I dare you," he taunted a fair young visitor from Atlanta, who has been in the city for only a short while.

"You're on!" she answered.

To the tune of "That Mysterious Rag" the daring couple trotted onto the floor, and to the sight of a real presentation of the widely-barred terpsichorean creation, local society whispered, envied and said: "Who'd have thought it?"

So pleased with their initial dance was the couple, that they performed "The Grizzly Bear" and "The Boston Dip." When the latter dance was completed, the applause diminished and they dropped back into Gainesville's standard waltz and two-step with an occasional barn dance for further excitement.

This morning Gainesville was agog with excitement. The Apache dances have found their way into its staid society, but how long they will remain is a matter of secret speculation.

WILL CIRCLE GLOBE IN AIR, SAY THESE TWO AVIATORS

An air cruise around the globe is contemplated by Aviators Oscar A. Brindley and Edward R. Shaw. They will set out from Atlanta some time in February, according to a letter received in the city last week.

Both "bird-men" have been in the business almost since its start in this country, and hold records won at various meets throughout the United States. They intend to put their circle about the planet in seven months.

Mr. Shaw explained recently about the voyage: "We shall leave Atlanta, bound around the world, flying in a eastward direction. The journey will be made in a Wright biplane, model B. That is the largest craft manufactured at the present time. We expect to use at least three more before the flight is ended."

They say they intend to fly over the Atlantic ocean, though they will be obliged to cross the Pacific by steamer. Five mechanics will follow them around the earth, and extra parts for the machine will be carried by them. Their itinerary will be as nearly as possible the following, according to their present plans:

From Atlanta to Jacksonville, Fla., to Key West, whence they will fly across the Florida straits to Havana, Cuba. From Havana they will fly over the island of Santiago, thence to the Isthmus of Panama, which they will fly over, and on to Salina Cruz, on the west coast of Honduras. Thence they will sail across the Pacific to Japan, landing at Yokohoma. Flying across the island to Kobe, on the western coast, they will fly to Siam, thence through China, by a southern route to Bombay. Thence in a northwesterly direction they will fly towards the Mediterranean, stopping at Port Said, Turkey. After flying across the countries of southern Europe they will cross the English channel, visiting England and Ireland, and from Dublin will set sail across the Atlantic for Labrador.

The expedition is financed, according to Mr. Shaw, by Louie Mitchell, an ardent fant where the flying game is concerned.

Messrs. Brindley and Shaw are expected to arrive in Atlanta in the next few days.

WOMEN, AVOID OPERATIONS

Many Unsuccessful — And Worse Suffering Often Follows. Mrs. Rock's Case A Warning.

The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will show how unwise it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when often it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in the hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement.

Paw Paw, Mich.—"Two years ago I suffered very severely with a displacement. I could not be on my feet for a long time. My physician treated me for several months without much relief and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has restored the health of thousands of suffering women. Why don't you try it?

But Four Weeks of Lethargy

Edited By DICK JEMISON

SWELL OPENER IS PLANNED

Gate City Athletic Club Opens Its Doors Tuesday Night.

With a record of thirty-one knock-outs in forty-nine fights, Joe Seiger, the champion lightweight of Colorado, faces Bert Keyes, that sterling New York boxer, at the Gate City Athletic Club, 36 James street, Tuesday evening. This is only one of the four bouts arranged for the entertainment of Atlanta fans, another main bout and two preliminaries being booked for the opening card, which will be by far the best ever given the fighting public of this city.

Jake Abel and Mike Saul will mix in the second main bout of the evening. Saul has been working for two weeks to get in proper shape for this go, while Abel is in the prime of shape, having trimmed Danny Goodman, of Chattanooga, Wednesday evening. The two have been hankering for a match for some months, and now that they are matched, will go hard to settle an old grudge.

Jack Dougherty a main-bout boy of Chattanooga, Memphis, Nashville and several other southern cities, will face Billy Van in the semi-wind-up. These two boys will go six rounds, the two main scraps being scheduled for ten each.

A colored bout is announced as the opener. The participants have been under the care of an experienced boxer for some months, and will put on a really clever scrap.

The announcement that thirty rounds of good boxing was to be offered by the new club has served to already bring it into popularity, no other club in this section ever offering two main bouts and as many preliminaries in the same evening. And the best thing about the thirty rounds on tap for Tuesday evening is that they all are good ones.

Keyes and Seiger are both at the top of their class. They have been at the game long enough to know it from every angle, and it will be a mad rush from gong to gong, both being rushing boxers of the Nelson type. Seiger has hundreds of victories to his credit, one of them being a victory over Jerry Murphey. Keyes' most recent laurel was in the defeat he handed out to that grand boxer, Leach Cross.

A special balcony for colored fans has been wired off from the main arena of 2,000 seats. The box seats are right at the ring side, while the press seat is just in rear of the row of boxes, and so elevated that a good view of the ring can be secured. Only the members of the press will be admitted to this box.

The final games of the basketball season in the Atlanta and Fulton Leagues will be played on Thursday night. This will be the tenth series of games, winding up probably the most successful season of basketball ever held in Atlanta.

The great Fifth Regiment team wins the pennant in the Atlanta League as they are sure of victory on Thursday night. This team ought to have gone through the season without a defeat and would have, had their captain been in the game the night they played Wesley Memorial.

The fast little Wesley second team walks away with the pennant in the Fulton League winning every game played. That they will also win next Thursday goes without saying. No team has been able to even make things interesting for them during the entire season.

BERT KEYES HERE FOR SEIGER BOUT

Bert Keyes, the crack lightweight, who meets Joe Seiger in the windup at the new Gate City Athletic Club Tuesday night, reached Atlanta from New York, looking in the pink of condition.

Keyes has been meeting the top notch boys of his division in Gotham but from the appearance of his face, none of them has given him any amount of trouble. In appearance he is a great deal on the order of Young Corbett, when that esteemed gent was in his prime.

The management of the new club announces that everything is in readiness for their opening stag and they expect the classiest fistic entertainment ever seen in Atlanta.

LEGACY SLOW COMING, LEJEUNE SIGNS UP

Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 4.—(Special.)—Larry Lejeune, outfielder on last year's Lookouts who protested his sale to the Grand Rapids team of the Central league and stated that he would set up in business in Chattanooga with a legacy which he expects to get from Belgium, has changed his mind. He has signed with the Central league team. At present, the legacy is in the hands of the lawyers and Lejeune has serious fears that it will remain there.

TO SWAP BOXERS WITH TWO CLUBS

The Gate City Athletic club has completed arrangements with a club in Chattanooga and one in Jacksonville to swap boxers for the rest of the boxing season.

By this arrangement the new local club can bring the best boys in New York down here as they can guarantee them three fights and make it worth the while of the top notchers to take the long trip.

BY WAY OF GOOD MORNING

NOT ALL SCRAPPING IS DONE WITH GLOVES

A SCORE IN FOOTBALL IS DESTINED TO REAPPEAR

By FUZZY WOODRUFF

Hear the growls of the fistic impressarios! They sound familiar, but none the less ominous, ominous not by virtue of the terrifying tones of the bearlike notes, but ominous in reference to a certain stillness that is bound to follow in things pugilistic unless someone puts on the soft pedal.

Things fistic have been moving nicely in Atlanta since their revival a month or so ago. The patrons of the art of self-defense and personal punishment have seen good, fast, clean sport. There is no reason why this should not continue. No reason, save the growls.

The growls are resultant from the fact that a second club has been organized and the fact that both clubs have announced their intention of holding their weekly stags on the same night.

Now two clubs might last in Atlanta if their entertainment dates did not conflict. It is decidedly problematical though. It is certain that the clubs cannot exist long while their promoters buck each other. Let this warfare continue a few weeks and the sound of glove smashing on body will be as strange in Atlanta as the sound of structural steel work in the heart of Zambesiland.

But it has been ever thus, in every clime. The scrapping in the glove game has never been confined to the clashing of the men in the arena. The promoters and the press agents have always done more fighting than the boxers. It seems likely that history will repeat itself in Atlanta. Let us hope for an exception to the rule.

The football rule makers have done well in their preliminary work. They could hardly have failed to do so, for nothing could have been more unsatisfactory than the system of rules under which the teams played last year. The new regulations cannot help but add to the scoring powers of the teams. The ten-yard backfield will make the forward pass of some real benefit and the elimination of the twenty-yard zone is beyond peradventure a godsend to the game. The increase to four downs will avoid the constant punting to some extent and nothing added more to the weariness of last year's game. In practically every game last year scoring was so difficult that it was rarely possible except in cases of flukes, whereby the weaker team was enabled to defeat the stronger organization. This made the game entirely lacking in class, but redolent of luck. Under these new regulations we can well hope to see a revival of form in football.

Once unbeatable, the Cubs have their work cut out for them next year and it seems that it will be many a weary moon before another piece of bunting floats from Chubby Charley Murphy's pine pole on the West Side of the Windy City. The sudden death of Jimmy Doyle, his excellent third corner protector, makes Peerless Leader Chance's task all the more Herculanean and he will have to come up to his sobriquet "Husk" to put the deal across by which his team will not be relegated to the second division. Doyle was the only member of the Cub infield last season not on the down grade. Chance's days at first are numbered. Johnny Evers is far from the marvel of old. Tinker has slumped apparently and there is no one to fill Doyle's place. His pitching staff is thoroughly shot to pieces. Hofman and Sheckard, in the outfield, have both gone back. Archer and Schulte alone seem his bulwark. With this condition, although the blasts are still stingy enough to make one wish he had not visited his avuncular relation so soon with his overcoat, it looks like the Giants for another season of easy sailing in the old league.

Another death that every true baseball fan feels is that of the mother of Connie Mack. She performed a signal service for baseball in that she is responsible for the career of her son. When the youthful Cornelius decided to leave a paying job to cast his lot in the uncertainties of baseball, the mother did not hesitate. She told her boy to go out and make the greatest ball player in the world. Before she died she had the pleasure of knowing that her offspring had not only attained the highest honors of the national pastime, but had so conducted himself that he had made his profession one honored among callings. Her work was well done.

LOCAL SOCCER TEAM PLAYS CHATTANOOGA FEBRUARY 22

The local soccer players have definitely arranged for a game with a team representing Chattanooga in Chattanooga on Washington's birthday, and are making great preparations for the contest.

The local boys held a swell practice game on Saturday afternoon and every man on the team is now in the best of condition and eager for the mill. There is also a possibility of another game being staged in the near future, two of three cities wanting games.

Ted Coy, the Yale football star, is going to play on the Chattanooga line-up, and his presence in the game adds additional incentive to the local boys.

JACKETS' NINE STARTS PRACTICE

Coach Heisman will have his Tech baseball squad out for their first practice on Monday and from today until the first game is played, things should hum in a baseball way at the Flats.

If Drake can be developed into a good pitcher, and he was a good one down in his home town in Griffin, then the Jackets will be the hardest college team in the south to lick as they are strong in every other position but the box.

Con Reilly Coming.

Con Reilly, who will be remembered here as the handler of Jerry Murphy in the old days, and who has a fine string of scrappers on his staff, will arrive in Atlanta soon to match some of his boys before local clubs. With the advent of Reilly, the game should take a big jump in this town.

NO CONTINUOUS BALL FOR 'NOOGA

Chattanooga, Tenn., February 4.—(Special.)—Nothing doing for continuous baseball in Chattanooga is the welcome given to the latest craze by the local club. There is no desire here of entering either Sally, Southeastern or Appalachian leagues. One league seems about all that Chattanooga can keep up with. President Andrews probably will not oppose the Cotton States club in New Orleans, though he admits that he questions the wisdom of the move, both for the Pelicans and the other clubs in the league.

L. S. U. in Auburn.

Auburn, Ala., Feb. 4.—(Special.)—Mike Donahue's bastketball boys will defend their college flag against the onslaughts of the quintet from Louisiana State University here on next Saturday night. It should be a great game.

STATEN'S BOYS ARE ALL HERE

His Boxers Are Ready for the Tap of the Gong Tuesday Night.

Every scrapper on Harry Staten's bill for Tuesday night has reached Atlanta, and all are declared by the local manager to be in first class condition for the coming bouts.

Staten himself is jubilant over the prospects of good milling. "I am satisfied with my card for Tuesday," he said. "I'm a little hard to please and I have sometimes had to put on stuff that wasn't as good as I wanted, even though it was the best I could get. But Tuesday's card stands without any apologies. I think it is all right. We know what English, Jerry Murphy, Jack Clark and Charley Lee can do. We have seen them scrap. They're there.

"From all I can hear this Jack Murphy, who meets English, is just as good as the others. His scrap with English in Pittsburg was written up as one of the big things of the season, and the fact that he could stand up for six rounds with a man as aggressive as English and get a draw is a pretty good indication that he will do very nicely."

The odd thing about Staten is that he is a real boxing crank. If he weren't he could not have stuck to the promoting game as long as he has. He has either just broke even or else lost money on every Queensberry venture. He didn't make anything the last time the game was on tap here. And he hasn't made anything this time. But he keeps right on promoting. And the reason he does is the same reason that little towns have baseball teams, and golf courses and yacht clubs—they lose money, but they are backed by men who are cranks. Staten is always profoundly unhappy when there isn't any boxing going on, and it is due to his unaided efforts that the game is in vogue in Atlanta at present.

Now that Staten has his club in Savannah as well as the one here, he will be in a position to do some good. He can get better men and by dint of practicing certain economies that are associated with "big business," he can give Atlanta and Savannah fans better bouts for the same money that he could if he ran only one place.

Staten, by the way, has closed with Ernie Zanders for his opening bout in Savannah, and will send him against Clarence English. This should give him a good card for his first Savannah scrap. The winner of this will go on against some better opponent, either in Atlanta or Savannah.

Whiffs

Close Affiliation Counts.

THE CRACKERS made two wise moves during the past winter. One was the securing of Charley Hemphill, and the other was the close affiliation obtained with the New York Americans, made possible by the obtaining of Hemphill. Through this source the Crackers are obtaining some good players, and it now seems more than likely that Catcher Tonneman will revert here instead of going to Memphis, as first mapped out. When Boston asked waivers Wolverton refused to waive. Tonneman may make good. If he don't, he would make a mighty handy man for the locals.

In Just One Month.

FOUR WEEKS from today the lethargy of the winter will be a thing of the past. Manager Harry Wolverton and his New York Yankees will be cavorting around at Ponce de Leon park. Then the crop of dead grandmothers of office boys will begin to get larger as each succeeding day passes.

Releasing a Comedian.

CHARLES V. FAUST, self-appointed Jinx chaser of the New York Giants, is about to get the pink slip. But with the asking of waivers comes the information from the lips of the Giant's mascot himself that if he is given the can he is through with organized baseball forever, and will join the outlaws. My! such a dire threat, Charley. You sassy thing.

Maybe He Is a "Hope."

AL PALZER is being touted as the most hopeful of the "hopes." Maybe he is, but—. Well, we'll wait a while until said Palzer has performed some such creditable stunt as disposing of Joe Jeanette, Sam Langford, Sam McVey and others, not to mention the array of fellow "hopes," such as Carl Morris, Al Kaufman, Jim Flynn, et al. When he does that then he IS a "hope." Until then—sleep, baby sleep.

Basketball Season Closing.

MOST SUCCESSFUL is a term that could be applied to the basketball season locally that is drawing to a close. On Thursday night the Atlanta and Fulton Leagues wind up their seasons. The latter part of this month the Atlanta Athletic Club quintet plays its last game. Basketball flourished in Atlanta during the 1911-12 season, and indications point to an even more successful one in 1912-13. It's a great game, both from a spectator and player standpoint. Mollycoddles do not play this sport.

No Serious Hold-out.

MANAGER HEMPHILL is authority for the statement that there is no member on the club's reserve list that he considers a serious hold-out, barring possibly Harold Johns. But even the southpaw is expected to round into line before much longer. Eleven players still unsigned is the status. But the local mogul expects the majority of their contracts very soon now.

They Are Not Antagonistic.

THE GATE CITY Athletic Club wishes to correct the impression that they are fighting Staten by booking their opening card for Tuesday night. They announced Tuesday as their opening night before Staten changed from Friday to Tuesday. Staten made his change, however, because it was compulsory at that time. The Gate City boys are willing to change, or let Staten change, if he sees fit, though they are authority for the statement that he does not seem to want to do either.

That Public Nuisance.

THE SEWER at Ponce de Leon park has not been closed as yet. But it must be ere long. It's up to some one to see to it, and quickly. This sewer is a public nuisance, unhealthy, and of no earthly good to any one. So, why should it be there. Patrons at the ball park have complained of it for seasons now. Residents on the adjoining street are kicking. Close it up, gentlemen. It's a duty. The fans demand it. The taxpayers demand it. We demand it.

The Southern Champions.

THE BASKETBALL title of the southern states, at the present writing, belongs to the Birmingham Athletic Club, and until they are defeated they will be entitled to this prize. Their victories over Columbus and Atlanta on Friday and Saturday nights last week establishes them firmly in first place. Mobile may beat them, and if they do, then the title will be in a nice mess, but until the Gulls do, the Barons have first claim.

REST IS ORDERED FOR LA FOLLETTE

Believed That Senator's Breakdown Removes Him From Presidential Race.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, February 4.—(Special.) Physically, Senator La Follette had recovered today sufficiently to go to the hospital where his daughter, Mary, is convalescing, after an operation; but his nerves are temporarily shattered.

A complete rest of two or three weeks has been prescribed for the insurgent senator. It is hoped by his friends that by the end of that time he will be able to resume his campaign for president.

Walter L. Houser, his campaign manager, today gave out the following: "We stand on the statement put out from headquarters a few days ago. Senator La Follette has no intention of quitting the race for president."

However, Mr. La Follette's diatribe against the daily newspapers of the United States, which was carefully prepared in advance of the dinner of the American Periodical Publishers' Association in Philadelphia Friday night, is thought to presage the beginning of the end of his campaign for the republican nomination.

There is no doubt that Senator La Follette is far from being a well man. He is completely used up. Although a man of tremendous energy, the strain of his speechmaking campaign, and the uphill fight he has been making against terrific odds, the disappointment and despair which has come over him as he realized the futility of it all, have told on him, and paved the way for the tragic breakdown at the Philadelphia dinner.

Despite the assurances of his friends and supporters, it is generally believed here that Don C. Seitz, toastmaster at the dinner, expressed the situation accurately when he said Mr. La Follette had "wiped himself off the map" by his performance. Mr. La Follette does not recall anything connected with his speech.

BLUMENBERG ON VERGE OF PHYSICAL BREAKDOWN

Washington, February 4.—Milton W. Blumenberg, whose arrest on a charge of contempt of the senate Lorimer investigation committee brought last night's session of the committee to a sensational close, rested quietly today under the watchful eye of an assistant sergeant-at-arms of the senate. The committee did not meet formally today to discuss Blumenberg's action in gratuitously branding as "faked" the testimony of a witness. The matter will be taken up tomorrow in executive session.

None of the members of the committee would discuss the matter. It is understood, however, that a course of action will be adopted in the executive session. It is decided to press the charge of contempt lodged against Blumenberg, the whole affair will be laid before the bar of the senate, which as a body alone could inflict punishment.

Blumenberg is on the verge of a breakdown, according to his friends. His physician, Dr. John F. Morgan, called upon him today, but declined to report on Mr. Blemenberg's condition. Although his friends say his health is precarious, Blumenberg was able to take a short walk with his keeper.

ATLANTA PLAYS COLUMBUS FIVE

Great South Georgia Team Is Coming Here Next Saturday.

By reason of their great showing with the Birmingham Athletic Club basketball team on Saturday night, the stock of the Atlanta Athletic Club five has taken a boost in advance of the next game.

The Columbus Young Men's Christian Association team will be the opponents of the local boys on next Saturday night at the local gymnasium.

A couple of weeks ago the Atlanta boys played in Columbus losing by the closely fought score of 39 to 33. The locals are confident of their ability to reverse the tables now.

CONKLIN IS LEADING IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

New York, February 4.—Billiard experts reviewing tonight the first week of the national amateur class A. 18.2 balk line championship billiard tournament here had little trouble in classing the work of Charles F. Conklin, of Chicago, as easily the best and most consistent of any competitor. The international champion won every game in which he competed. He has defeated Dr. Walter G. Douglas, Joseph Mayer and Dr. Walter E. Uffenheimer, but many believe that Percy Collins, the youthful fellow-townsman of Conklin, will give him trouble. Collins has hung up the record high average of the tournament with 13 10-30 and his best run is 77.

J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, Morris, D. Brown and Collins are tied for second place, each with two victories and one defeat. The three are playing in splendid form although Poggenburg has displayed a propensity to fall down on his cushion shots where the ivories are rolling badly for him.

The standing:

PLAYER.	Won.	Lost.
Conklin	3	0.
Poggenburg	2	1.
Brown	2	1.
Collins	2	1.
Mayer	1	2.
Uffenheimer	1	2.
Douglas	0	3.

WHITE CAPS WILL SOON REORGANIZE

On next Tuesday evening at 7:30 the White Caps will hold a rousing meeting at 97 Peachtree street to make their plans of the 1911 season which makes the 5th season for this team.

Manager Weatherly expects to have the greatest ameteur team that ever played in and around Atlanta.

He will request the following players to attend this meeting: Philups, Pendley, Coffey, Bartlett, Donaldson, Beggs, Wiggins, Hawkins, Gillett, Harbison, Dickerson, Woodward and Jones.

SUGAR COMBINE SAYS IT'S GOOD

All the Allegations Made by Government Are Denied.

Trust Denies That It Is a Monopoly, or That It Is in Restraint of Trade—"Customs Frauds" Are Charged to Wicked Employees.

New York, February 4.—The American Sugar Refining Company tomorrow will file its answer in the United States district court to the suit brought in November, 1910, by the federal government for its dissolution.

The answer is a denial of the allegations of unlawful combination or restraint of trade. It comprises, together with the exhibits, 188 printed pages, and constitutes the joint and several answers of the American Sugar Refining Company, Washington B. Thomas, Arthur Bonner, George H. Frazier, Henry E. Niese, Henry C. Mott, Samuel C. Hooker, Samuel Carr, Edwin S. Marston, Edwin F. Atkins, Charles H. Allen, Joseph E. Freeman, the American Sugar Refining Company of New York, the Franklin Sugar Refining Company, William W. Harrison, William W. Frazier, Jr., and the Spreckels Sugar Refining Company.

James M. Beck, counsel to the American Sugar Refining Company, appears as solicitor for the defenders named, and associated with him are Richard Olney, John J. Johnson and Frank L. Crawford.

The answer treats every allegation of the government's bill in detail, and defines the position of the company in respect to the charges brought against it from time to time.

Monopoly Charge Denied.

Among the most important allegations of the government's bill dealt with are the general charges of conspiracy and combination, the reason urged by the government as guiding the company's formation, its acquisition of an interest in the refining industry of the Pacific coast through the Western Sugar Refining Company, its purchase of Philadelphia refineries including the Segal refinery, its investment in the National Sugar Refining Company and in various best sugar companies, the so-called "custom frauds" and its conduct in regard to the prices of refined sugar and its attitude toward competition.

The answer denies that the American Sugar Refining Company in January, 1891, or at any other time has been a monopoly or in in restraint of trade or that in January, 1891, the corporation acquired 90 per cent of the entire sugar business of the United States. It avers that prior to March, 1892, the company carried on not to exceed 65 per cent of the business.

Denial also is made that the business of the company for many years has equaled or approached 90 per cent. The company it says refines not to exceed 40 per cent of the total amount of refined or manufactured sugar produced in this country.

Continuing, the answer declares that since the organization the American company competition in the manufacture of refined sugar has been open and free and that the total output of the company has not increased in the past ten years.

The answer then sets forth at considerable length the reasons for forming the American Sugar Refining Company.

The "Customs Frauds."

Continuing, the question of the alleged "customs frauds" is treated very fully. The answer denies that in order to enrich themselves or to destroy competition the defendant companies or their officers secured entry of their imports at weights below the real weights or that they defrauded the government out of any sums of money.

The defendants admit, however, that prior to the year 1907 certain employees of a single refinery of the American Company for the purpose of making a more favorable showing of the business of this refinery did, without the knowledge of any responsible officer of the company, causing the government to be defrauded out of considerable sums of money.

When these practices were discovered in 1907, the American Company at once repudiated them and placed all the information it had concerning these occurrences at the disposal of the federal government. The amount lost to the government through these practices was $2,000,000, which sum was subsequently paid to the government.

HEROIC NEGRO JANITOR SAVES LIVES FROM FIRE

Louisville, Ky., February 4.—Fire discovered at 1:45 o'clock this morning destroyed the six-story St. James apartment house in the most fashionable residential section of the city, rendering seventy-five people homeless and causing a financial loss estimated at over $100,000. The occupants were aroused from their beds, and escaped clad only in their night clothes.

Owing to the heroism of Stewart Wade, a negro janitor, who ran the elevator to the top floor twice through the flames, no lives were lost. Just after he finished his second trip the cable broke and the cage shot down to the basement. Mrs. E. S. Collins, an aged woman, sustained a broken leg by falling down stairs, and two firemen, William Herdt and Matthew Tully, received injuries, but their condition today is not serious. The extremely cold weather caused much suffering.

THE REAL CAUSE IS OVERLOOKED

Twenty-Five Per Cent of Population Are Affected.

"Nervous debility is usually the forerunner of some trouble far more serious and about twenty-five per cent of the people of Atlanta are suffering with it. In most cases, however, they fail to recognize their trouble as nervous debility, but attribute their condition to other diseases."

This statement was made last evening by one of the specialists who are here introducing the remarkable new tonic, "Tona Vita," and who are located at the Jacobs' Pharmacy Company.

According to this specialist, the hustle and worry incident to metropolitan life is too much of a strain on the average man or woman and chronic nervous debility is the result. The specialists claim that no individual can hope to succeed or enjoy life when once this disease is established and that comparatively few people know the cause of their poor health and lack of vitality.

"Tired, droopy, half-sick men and women are very numerous in all large cities," said the specialist. "They have uncertain appetites, poor digestion, little ambition, and feel almost too tired for work most of the time. They suffer from timidity, have no initiative and haven't enough good rich blood in their veins to make them capable or self-reliant. Their nerves are in such a state that they imagine themselves afflicted with various diseases at different times. The real trouble with them is debility, produced by the life they are forced to lead. There is little of this ailment among the country people.

"The medical profession as a whole have recognized these facts for a number of years, but little was done to overcome this ailment, so far as the general public is concerned, until a tonic was introduced in Europe some time ago which proved very effective. A company has been organized to put a similar preparation on the market in the United States. The tonic is called 'Tona Vita,' in this country and it is now being introduced in many cities here.

"Every day we have a great number of people come to us and say that they have been benefited by the use of this tonic to such an extent that they no longer feel the necessity of taking any further medicines whatever."

The specialists who are introducing the tonic can be seen at the Jacobs' Pharmacy, Marietta Street, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 8 p. m., any day during their stay here. ***

Little Items of Georgia Cities

Bulloch County Fair.

Statesboro, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—It seems certain that a Bulloch county fair will be held in Statesboro in the early fall. J. R. Miller, who has had extensive experience in the fair business, carrying displays from this county to the attractions in both Macon and Atlanta for a number of years, has taken the initiative and has already started a subscription list to raise necessary operation funds. He has met with much success, which goes to show that the people want the organization to be perfected and the fair pulled off.

Suit Case Stolen.

Rome, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—Robert Harris and A. H. Fair, two white boys, are in the county jail charged with stealing a suit case from a Southern railway passenger train. They were arrested last night by Bailiff Harris and will be given a hearing Monday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Walter Harris. The suit case was the property of W. O. Sanders, a conductor on the Southern train. One of the boys was seen wearing some of the jewelry that was in the case, and the arrest promptly followed.

Big Hotel for Columbus.

Columbus, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—Formal petition for incorporation of the "Columbus, Georgia, Hotel Company" has been filed in Muscogee superior court by J. Ralston Cargill, L. H. Chappell and many other business men here. The company will have a minimum capital stock of $50,000 and an authorized capital of $1,000,000. Much of the capital stock has been subscribed, and the building of a modern hotel for Columbus is now regarded as practically assured. Option has been obtained on several sites, all centrally located.

J. K. Orr Makes Address.

Columbus, Ga., February 4.—(Special.)—J. K. Orr, of Atlanta, spoke of the Forward Movement at the Young Men's Christian Association building this afternoon, at which time he met many of the leading religious workers of the city. The occasion was a layman's conference in the interest of this movement.

HE SAVED SLEEPERS FROM BEING BURNED

Newbern, N. C., February 4.—The daring work of Policeman Fred Rowe saved the lives of H. I. Crumpler, city editor of the Newbern aDily Journal, and his wife early this morning, when the Stewart building on middle street, in which they occupied apartments, was destroyed by fire. The building was enveloped in flames and in a few minutes the passageway leading to the second floor would have been cut off, when Rowe dashed up the steps, bursted down the door leading to the Crumpler apartments and pulled the sleepers from their bed. Mr. and Mrs. Crumpler had barely time enough to gather a few garments in their hands and escape with their lives. They lost all their household goods.

The lower floor of the building was occupied by mercantile establishments and in one of these, conducted by George Adler, the blaze originated. The loss is given aas $50,000, with about $10,000 insurance.

Chicago as a Convention City.

(From Leslie's.)

Chicago, in 1860, where Lincoln was nominated for his first term, held the first convention which selected a republican president. Grant (for his first term), was nominated in Chicago, and so were Garfield, Blaine, Harrison (the first time), Roosevelt and Taft. Blaine's case, in 1884, was the only instance in which a republican nominated in Chicago failed of election. Cleveland was nominated in Chicago in that year, so that a Chicago ticket carried the country. Harrison, in 1892, the year in which he was defeated, was nominated in Minneapolis. Chicago has associated its name so often with republican victory in presidential campaigns that the selection of that city for the meeting place of 1912 is a good omen for that party.

Mrs. Lincoln's Ball Dress.

(McCall's Magazine for February.)

It was just a little over fifty years ago that the wife of President Lincoln made her first appearance at a social function of real magnitude, and the newspapers of that day were filled with descriptions of the manner in which the first lady of the land conducted herself, how she was received, and, most impressive of all, what she wore.

She had journeyed up to Long Branch, which was one of the leading resorts of the war period, and on the evening of her arrival, August 17, 1861, a dance was given at the mansion house which assumed the proportions of a ball. Pictures of her in the costume she wore, taken by the civil war photographer, Brady, vividly recall the reign of crinoline which distinguished the period of our grandmothers, and bring home to us the fact that the extravagances of fashion are not confined to the age of the jupe culotte, the sheath gown and the hobble skirt.

The amplitude of the skirt, extended by hoops which gave the wearer the appearance of an inflated balloon, must have made it extremely difficult for any great number of couples to dance on the average ball-room floor. In point of fact, Mrs. Lincoln did not dance, but when she entered the ball room she wore—as the chroniclers of the time inform us—"an elegant robe of white grenadine, with a long, flowing train, the bottom of the skirt puffed with quillings of white satin." Her arms and shoulders were bare, except for an elegant point lace shawl which was thrown over her shoulders. She wore a necklace and bracelets of pearls and a head-dress of wreathed white wild roses. In short, she was the most richly and completely dressed woman in the room.

The whirligig of fashion spun around less rapidly in those days than now, when the means of communication with Paris and London are so much more rapid, so the reign of hoopskirt extended far into the post-bellum period. The woman of today would look aghast at such a costume; but so would have the women of Long Branch on that August night, fifty years ago, if anyone had appeared in any of the clinging gowns which the present day regards as supremely modish.

The study of the civil war period is giving us light on a great many things besides sieges and battles.

Arnold Bennett's Findings on the Subject of Babies.

Arnold Benett writes an amusing and wonderful description of "The Baby's Bath" in the February American Magazine. Following is a brief extract:

"As for the baby, except that it was decidedly superior to the average infant in external appearance and pleasantness of disposition, it was, in all essential characteristics, a typical baby—that is to say, it was purely sensuous and it lived the life of the senses. It was utterly selfish. It never thought of anyone but itself. It honestly imagined itself to be the center of the created universe. It was convinced that the rest of the universe had been brought into existence solely for the convenience and pleasure of it—the baby. When it wanted anything, it made no secret of the fact, and it was always utterly unscrupulous in trying to get what it wanted. If it could have obtained the moon, it would have upset all the astronomers of Europe and made Whitaker's Almanack unsalable without a pang. It had no good but its stomach. It never bothered its head about higher things. It was a bully and a coward, and it treated women as beings of a lower order than men. In a word, it was that ideal creature, sung off the poets, from which we gradually sink and fall away as we grow older.

"At the age of six months it had quite a lot of hair, and a charming rosy expanse at the back of its neck, caused through lying on its back in contemplation of its own importance. It didn't know the date of the Battle Hastings, but it knew with the certainty of absolute knowledge that it was the master of the house, and that the activity of the house revolved round it."

The Orderly Jew.

(From Leslie's.)

In every county of the world in which they reside, however, the Jews are among the most orderly elements of the populace. About 1,800,000 of the 11,000,00 Jews of the world reside in the United States. In proportion to numbers, they are one of the most valuable components of our population. Russia, with 5,000,000, and Austria-Hungary, with 2,000,000, are the only countries that lead the United States in the number of their Jewish people. More than half the entire number in this country reside in New York city. In this one municipality there are more Jews than are in any other four cities in the world. Many times more Jews are in New York than were in Jerusalem when at its most populous stage. More are in New York than were ever in the whole of Palestine. Every fifth person met on the streets of New York belongs to the Jewish race. Naturally we insist that they shall have the same rights abroad that are accorded to all other classes of Americans.

PLENTY OF WORK FOR CONGRESS

Busy Week Is Forecasted For House and Senate.

Tariff Revision Work Will Engage Committees of Both Houses—Democrats to Hold a Caucus in Regard to the "Money Trust."

Washington, February 4.—Tariff revision work in committees of both houses, a renewed attempt to fix a date for action on the pending arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France and a house caucus Wednesday night on the controversy between house leaders over the proposed investigation of the so-called "money trust" will enliven congress this week. House republicans will caucus tomorrow to ratify the selections which the various state delegations in congress have made for the representative of each state on the republican congressional committee. This committee will have charge of the party's general work in the next congressional campaign.

Tariff Hearings by Senate.

The senate committee on finance will begin active consideration of tariff matters Tuesday, when the first of a long series of hearings on the house steel revision bill will be held. Manufacturing interests which have manifested their opposition to the reductions, averaging 35 per cent from the present law, have arranged to be represented. Ample opportunity will be allowed for the appearance of all interested in the proposed revision. Some republican leaders have figured February 20 as an approximate date when the committee should be able to close the hearings and proceed to consider its report to the senate.

The democratic leaders do not favor the effort of Senator Newlands, of Nevada, to increase the finance committee's membership by one democrat and one progressive republican, and the progressive republicans have evinced no interest in it. The increase would change the complexion of the committee. The regular republicans have deferred final determination of their program, and neither the democrats nor the insurgent republicans have made overtures to each other looking to such a coalition. The house work on the tariff will be in the ways and means committee, which will frame the sugar schedule revision bill for report in about a fortnight.

The Peace Treaties.

Canvasses made by a number of senators are cited by advocates of the treaties as showing that the treaties can now command the necessary two-thirds vote of the senate for ratification. It is understood that Senator Curtis, of Kansas, has completed a poll, showing 62 senators for the treaties, 24 being willing to vote for them without amendments; 22 senators have expressed their opposition to the treaties in any form, and five out of eight senators classed as uncertain are expected to prove favorable to the treaties.

The house "steel trust" and "sugar trust" investigating committees will resume sessions this week. The "sugar trust" committee will begin tomorrow to prepare its report, which it is announced will not embrace any political discussion. James J. Hill, of the Great Northern railroad, is expected to appear before the steel committee Wednesday.

Revenue Measures.

Revenue measures, also, are to command attention. The army appropriation bill, carrying $88,000,000 and providing for an army reorganization that has precipitated a vigorous fight between Secretary Stimson and Major General Wood on one side and Adjutant General Ainsworth on the other, is on the program of the house, along with the agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $15,800,000, and the $3,400,000 diplomatic and consular bill. The senate committee will consider the $10,300,000 District of Columbia appropriation bill already passed by the house, and probably will report it next week for prompt passage by the senate.

Testimony by Secretary Stimson and Chief Engineer Goethals, probably Wednesday, will close the hearings on Panama canal legislation before the house committee on interstate commerce. The senate is deferring consideration of canal matters until the house acts.

INVENTOR IS KILLED BY HIS PARACHUTE CAPE

Paris, February 4.—An Austrian tailor named Reichelt was killed today while testing an automatic parachute cape intended for the use of aviators. The contrivance was his own invention, and Reichelt was authorized by the police to carry out tests with a dummy first from a stage on Eiffel tower. Having absolute faith, however, in the efficacy of his invention, Reichelt secretly determined to dispense with the dummy and try the experiment in person. He rapidly donned the garment and leaped into space before he could be stopped.

For some reason the cape failed to open and Reichelt dropped like a stone. A great crowd that had gathered at the base of the tower burst into jeers when they saw what they believed to be the dummy drop. Their mirth suddenly changed to consternation when they realized that it was the inventor himself. Hardly a bone in his body was left unbroken.

Statehood for Arizona.

Washington, February 4.—President Taft has been asked to issue his Arizona statehood proclamation on Lincoln's birthday, February 12. The request came in a telegram to the white house today announcing that the election returns were on their way to Washington, and probably would arrive here about Wednesday next. Arizona became a territory during Lincoln's administration.

Puebla, Tlaxcala-Guerrero, and Mexico and the federal district itself.

In Guerrero, conditions are not greatly better than in Morelos. There the direct leader of the revolt is Jesus H. Salgado, who, like Zapata, is a former officer in Madero's revolutionary army. He has been more persistent in declarations that he is fighting for the cause of Emile Vasquez Gomez, but there is little doubt that he and Zapata are working together.

In the state of Tabasco there yet remains a trace of the revolt of a few weeks ago, but that had nothing of a national character.

That portion of Oaxaca, on the Tehauntepec isthmus, has yet a few minor rebels, but they are not operating against the federal government. Reform of local conditions is their cry.

Last week the list of uprisings was increased by one of Michoacan. Alleged abuses on an hacienda account for that. The insurrectos are chiefly field hands.

The Puzzle of Juarez.

The puzzle was furnished by the garrisons at Juarez and Chihuahua. The rebels in the south pretend a knowledge that the mutinous troops are working under the same general plan with themselves, but government officials profess to believe there is no connection, even between the two uprisings in the north.

A bad element in the rural forces with which Madero garrisoned the state of Chihuahua is given as the basis of the mutinies. The government was preparing to weed out of the service the undesirables. The undesirables moved first. Beyond the law it was necessary to support some cause, so that of Vasquez Gomez was espoused. The government also believes the mutineers will obtain few followers in that part of the country.

All in all, the officials belittle the importance of all the insurrections except that led by Zapata and Salgado.

Zapata's efforts were laughed at a few months ago, but not only has he gained a following large enough to stand off a considerable part of the Mexican army, but, far from being regarded as a puny brigand, he has come to be characterized as a patriot by the anti-Madero element.

JUAREZ IS AGAIN CONTROLLED BY THE MADERO GOVERNMENT

El Paso, Texas, February 4.—Juarez again is under control of the Madero government and the garrison that mutinied is on its way to Chihuahua in a special train, on a mission that has not been disclosed.

The tangled affairs of the Mexican city just across the border were straightened out by General Pascual Orozco after a half day's negotiations.

While some of the revolting garrisons were willing to return without General Orozco to Chihuahua, others at first held out strongly. In the course of the negotiations not one "viva" was heard for the general.

About 1,000 loyal federal troops are expected to arrive in Juarez before tomorrow.

Rafael Campa has been installed as chief of police at Juarez and Santiago Mestas as mayor.

Reports reaching here from Casas Grandes say that the garrison there has revolted in favor of Gomez, and that the rebels are in entire control. A Mexico Northwestern passenger train, seized by the rebels yesterday, is reported as still being held in Casas Grandes.

EL PASO CITIZENS CAUTIONED BY UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

El Paso, Texas, February 4.—The following telegram cautioning the citizens of El Paso was received here today from Secretary of State Knox, addressed to W. S. Clayton, president of the chamber of commerce:

"Your night letter to the president dated February 1, having been referred to this department, I take pleasure in informing you that the government of the United States is taking measures to safeguard American lives and property on the frontier, and in this connection indulge the sincere hope that the chamber of commerce and the local authorities of El Paso will use all influence possible upon your citizens to exercise all prudence.

P. C. KNOX,
"Secretary of State."

UNITED STATES PREPARING TO PATROL MEXICO BORDER

Washington, February 4.—To meet any emergency that may arise in connection with the unsettled conditions in northern Mexico, General Leonard A. Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, today issued orders to commanders of several army posts throughout the country to hold their trops in readiness for duty along the border.

General Duncan, in command of the Department of Texas, was instructed "to use his own judgment" in moving the troops under him in enforcing neutrality laws or strengthening the various garrisons along the international line. General Wood was at the war department most of the day arranging for a possible troops movement of extensive proportions such as took place last spring when the Madero revolution occurred in Mexico.

NEGRO CONVICTED BY TRANSMITTER

mitter with a receiver in a room in the city hall, across the street from the prison. For three days and nights there was a man at the telephone, and not for one moment was a single word spoken by the negroes lost. It is stated that a record of the transmitter and telephone showed that Will and Hack Ross spent considerable time in praying to the Lord to make John confess, if he was guilty, so as to save them from an unjust fate, and John is said to have at last admitted his guilt.

Convicted and Sentenced.

John Ross has since been tried and sentenced to death, and the other two negroes have been given their liberty. As the statements of the negroes, as recorded by the transmitter, implicated a white man, named Frank Gladden, he has been arrested, and will be tried for his life on the same charge.

The transmitter has been returned to the Baptist Tabernacle, with the following letter from the Western Electric Company:

"Rev. J. W. Ham, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: Relative to the transmitter that you loaned us some time ago to send out on a case, and of which I wrote you in general the results that had been accomplished, I take pleasure in attaching hereto the account of the use of this instrument as was forwarded to me. I trust this will be of interest to you, and again assure you of the appreciation of the loan of the article. Yours truly,

"C. C. SHOEN,

CORPSE OF NEGRO CREMATED BY MOB

of over 500 men and boys, who shouted: "Save the county money," and "teach the niggers a lesson."

Thousands Saw Burning.

The officers, led by Chief Chapman, arrived at the place after the negro's body was blazing. They did not interfere with the burning of the body nor make any arrests.

Before the flames died down the field was thronged with several thousand people, all white, who applauded and laughed at the sickening spectacle. The negroes in the vicinity locked themselves in their houses. It required over an hour and a half for the body to burn.

The lynching of the negro met with popular approval, although there was regret that the prisoner had been taken away from the officers of the law, but the stealing away and burning of the dead body is denounced by the better element of citizens as an atrocious outrage on the fair name of Macon.

Negro Lynched in Morning.

The negro was lynched about 3 o'clock this morning, being taken from officers who were trying to get him out of Macon.

The lynching took place in the yards of the Georgia Southern and Florida railroad, where the officers, hoping to outwit the mob, had gone with their prisoner to take a train for Atlanta. Powell was tied to a telegraph pole and hundreds of bullets fired into his body.

The young woman victim is well known throughout the city, and the brutal assault aroused great indignation.

The coroner held an inquest on the scene of the lynching of some six hours before at 9 o'clock this morning far out in the railroad yards, where the body was strapped to a telegraph pole and torn and sieved with bullets. The verdict placed blame on "parties unknown."

Rattle of Chains Betrayed Negro.

It is probable that the rattle of chains on the limbs of the negro caused his lynching. The dozen men who had received the tip that he was somewhere out in the yard, had about given up the search, but when passing a box car they heard the unmistakeable clink of metal, like a chain on the inside. They forced the door and found the two deputies with their prisoner. A dozen guns covered the trio and the officers gave their man up. The deputies stated that as the men drew near to the box car where they were hiding, the fright of the negro became uncontrollable and he trembled violently. It was the rattling of his chains caused by his fear that led the pursuers to their prey.

The police and sheriff tonight have extra details through the factory and mill sections of the city, as well as the negro districts to nip any incipient race outbreak which may show itself. Up to nightfall all was quiet and officials stated that no further trouble was feared.

Negro Attempted Another Assault.

It has developed that Charles Powell attempted a similar attack on a married lady living only a short distance from the scene of this outrage less than a half hour before. Only her desperate fighting and pluck saved her, and when she successfully repulsed him and escaped, he ran into an adjoining room and pulled a 12-year-old girl out of the bed by the hair. Fearing pursuit he then jumped from the roof of the porch to the ground, ran up Walnut street two or three blocks and then met the young lady whom he so brutally treated.

While the body was at the undertaking establishment today, and before it was stolen away and burned, identification was made positive by the lady whom the negro first attacked.

STOLE BANK FUNDS FOR THIRTY YEARS

Windsor Locks, Conn., February 4. That a W. Converse, treasurer of the Windsor Locks Savings Bank from 1871 to 1911 had been stealing the funds of the bank since 1879 has been disclosed by an examination of the books by the state banking commission. How large the defalcation is cannot be determined until the examination which has been brought up to 1888 has been completed, but it is stated that the stealings will amount to $150,000 and possibly more.

A few days previous to the discovery of the condition of the bank, which, which wa srecently closed, Converse shot himself accidentaly, according to hi sstatement, while cleaning a revolver.

Aunt Delia Arrives.

Washington, February 4.—Miss Delia Terry, President Taft's "Aunt Delia," arrived in Washington today to be a white house guest for several days. Although 87 years old, she traveled here alone from her home in Millbury, Mass.

WHO SENT BOMB TO KILL WOMAN?

ten minutes Miss Lamarre and her companion were absent Dickinson will be asked to tell tomorrow.

To Uncover Woman's Past.

A small business card on which was printed "American Electric Fuse Company, Muskegon, Mich.," with "represented by J. H. Taylor," written in ink, was found in the dead woman's apartments today and to this the police seemed to attach considerable significance. They have communicated with the firm and expect information tomorrow which they hope will throw some light upon the woman's past of which little is known other than that she has lived in New York seven years. She is reported to have been married to a man named Howard Walker, but the police do not know whether he is alive or not.

Coroner Feinberg says the bomb was very similar to the ingenious infernal machines contrived by foreign anarchists.

Either nitro-glycerine or fulminate of mercury he said, was the explosive used, it being encased in a three-inch steel cylinder about the circumference of a nickel with a steel cap screwed on either side. Wires leading from a small hole in the pipe to two small dry cell electric batteries on either side and thence to a spring in the lid of the box provided for the ignition of the explosive when the lid was raised.

ADVERTISING TALKS.

reads a financial advertisement which appeals to him. He and his wife have saved up a few hundred dollars. The advertisement promises a big return. Uncle Henry and Maria—plain, home-living people, trustful—believe everything they read in their newspaper.

They decide to invest their savings in the enterprise advertised.

IF THAT ADVERTISEMENT TELLS THE TRUTH, IT IS ALL RIGHT.

But suppose it does not tell the truth. Then what? Suppose the old couple invest their savings and lose them. WHO WOULD BE RESPONSIBLE?

Would the advertiser, or the publisher, or both be responsible?

Here's another thing to consider about Uncle Henry and Maria:

THEY READ THEIR DAILY NEWSPAPER CAREFULLY AND BELIEVE IN IT.

THERE ARE MILLIONS of Uncle Henrys and Marias all over the country who do the same thing.

Who can say truthfully that the daily newspaper is not a good advertising medium?

Who can say that because it appears once every twenty-four hours it has only fleeting attention, therefore, advertising in it cannot be remembered?

Under the family light, in the home at night, or by the window in the morning light—THE NEWSPAPER TELLS ITS DAILY STORY TO MILLIONS.

The newspaper keeps these millions informed, not only as to the news of the day, but as to HOW apartment, also, were locked and barricaded. When the party forced its way to the dining room, the odor of gas was first detected, and the mother became hysterical. Breaking through the next door, which led into the kitchen, the party found Noble and his wife lying dead on the floor, their heads almost inside the oven of the gas range. They were partly undressed, and clasped in each other's arms. A great volume of gas was escaping from five burners of the range, and the oven jets, also, were turned on. The woman was clad in a silk kimono, and she lay with Noble's left arm encircling her body, their faces being close together. Every window in the apartment was closed and bolted.

DOUBLE SUICIDE ENDS ROMANCE

Mrs. White, who was the first to see the bodies, shrieked and fainted. She was carried to a physician's office and resuscitated. The suicides left no notes to explain their act, but the police were convinced that it was a case of double suicide. The coroner, also, declared that the circumstances left no doubt that such was the case. He said the couple probably had been dead three or four hours before their bodies were found.

Her Ex-Husband Summoned.

A few minutes after the discovery Mrs. Noble's former husband, Walter Lispenard Suydam, a millionaire, was summoned by telephone, and arrived quickly in his automobile. He was much affected by the news of the suicide of the woman. He was not allowed to view the body, which later was given over to the custody of the mother.

Employees at the apartment house said that Suydam frequently had visited his divorced wife since her marriage to the young plumber. When asked what he thought might have been the motive of the suicide pact, Suydam said:

"I can't tell you anything. She isn't mine now, and I am only here as a friend to see what I can do."

Mr. Suydam picked up in the apartment a check for $110 which he said his former wife had told him yesterday she had drawn on his account. He put the check in his pocket.

Suydam was so unnerved by the tragedy that later, when driving his automobile on Fifth avenue, he ran down Edward Rappold, a mail carrier. He took the injured man to a hospital, leaving orders that no expense be spared in treating his injuries. It was said that the man would recover.

Woman Still Young.

In the absence of axplanatory notes the motive for the suicide will probably never be known. The woman was still in the twenties. She was married to Suydam about nine years ago, and the couple made their home on a magnificent estate at Blue Point, Long Island.

Mrs. Suydam had a strong intellect, and moved in the upper circles of society. Early last fall sensational reports developed regarding her mysterious disappearance. The sensation was heightened when it turned out that she had deserted her wealthy husband and magnificence to be with Noble, the son of a Brooklyn plumber. Noble was learning the plumbing trade. Suydam instituted divorce proceedings and obtained a decree.

The divorced wife afterwards married the plumber's son. The wedding took place in Jersey City just a month ago, and the couple established a home at 82 West One Hundred and Twentieth street, where the suicide pact terminated the romance today.

Ex-Husband Mourns for Woman.

The bodies were removed to an undertaking establishment tonight. Mrs. Noble's body was transferred to an elaborate casket on which her former husband came to lay a wreath of lilies of the valley. Noble's body, which was claimed by his father, was transferred to a plain wicker casket-basket. A battery of flashlights, touched off by newspaper photographers, just as Mrs. White stepped from the apartment to the street accompanying the body, so startled her that she screamed and fell in a faint. It was several minutes before she was revived.

According to a story told to the police by David Serviss, superintendent of the apartment house building, Noble may have attempted to take his life Friday night. Serviss said that the Nobles were overheard quarreling and at a late hour that night Mrs. Noble told the elevator operator to summon a physician as her husband had attempted suicide.

FORCED TO TELL ABOUT HIS LIQUOR

President of North Carolina Saloon League Arrested at Charlotte.

Charlotte, N. C., February 4.—Following a great prohibition mass meeting at the Auditorium, at which he exhibited to the audience eight pint bottles of whisky which he declared had been purchased illegally from local drug stores and clubs, President R. L. Davis, of the North Carolina Anti-Saloon League, was arrested tonight under ad testificandum warrants issued by the police justice as he left the hall. With a cell staring him in the face President Davis opened up and gave the desired information, stating where the liquor was purchased. The hearing was set for February 15, when Davis will have concluded his joint lecture tour with John G. Woolley, former presidential candidate of the prohibition party. Davis' personal recognizance was accepted in lieu of a bond.

MAJOR RICHARDSON GOES INTO UNKNOWN

Nashville, Tenn., February 4.—Major E. R. Richardson, brother of Congressman William Richardson, of Alabama, died here today as the result of a surgical operation. Major Richardson was a native of Alabama, having been born in Limestone county 70 years ago. He was an officer in Roody's brigade, Alabama cavalry, and has for years been treasurer of the board of directors of the Tennessee Confederate Home. For years eh was a prominent shoe manufacturer in Nashville, and was formerly chairman o fthe Tennessee election board.
